The Republican City Convention Saturday night, meeting in the Assembly Room of the Courthouse, chose their candidates for the City election to be held on April 2, and also ratified the choice of candidates for the City Council from each of the four Wards.

Leroy Iuchs, City Chairman, presided over the meeting.

Mayor Ralph H. Walker, was the keynote speaker of the convention. The Mayor reviewed the activities of the Council under his direction as Mayor and told of various accomplishments made in the past two years.

A contest developed in the selection for a candidate to run for City Assessor between Harry Young and Mrs. N. B. Patton. Several ballots were taken before the tie vote was broken and Young was nominated for the place on the ticket.

However, all was not lost for Mrs. Patton, who was named as the candidate to run for City Treasurer.

It was decided the City Committee Executive Committee would make a selection of a candidate to run for City Attorney, by March 11.

Candidates for the City Council who were ratified by the convention were Aaron W. Haller, First Ward; Harry Naugel, Second Ward; Carl Landes, Third Ward; George E. Dugan, Jr., Fourth Ward. Dugan is seeking re-election to the Fourth Ward seat.

Republican caucus meetings were held, Friday night, in each of the city's four wards for the purpose of nominating candidates for the City Council and to elect delegates to the City Convention to be held tonight at the Courthouse. The Republican City Convention will be held in the Magistrate Court Room at 7:30 p.m.

Chamber Tickets Still Available

The Chamber of Commerce reports a few tickets for the annual banquet meeting are still available at the Chamber office. The banquet is to be held in the Smith-Cotton high school cafeteria at 6:30 p.m. Thursday, March 14.

The newly elected members of the Board and Directors and the new officers will be introduced and installed at this meeting.

Young Refugee

Saigon — In a Saigon refugee camp following the death of her father and two of her sisters in a recent Viet Cong raind on Gia Dinh, a Saigon suburb, a Vietnamese girl is wide-eyed as she gets to eat a piece of grapefruit. It is not know if she was with any other relatives. (UPI)

Reds Hit By Combined Forces Near Da Nang

SAIGON (AP) — Armor-borne U.S. infantrymen, dive-bombing jets and field guns cut up a sizable Communist detachment Saturday in the coastal lowlands 40 miles south of Da Nang. Spokesmen said they killed 129 before the enemy broke contact in the night.

The U.S. Command reported there was no immediate word of casualties among the infantrymen, who raked the Communist ranks with 50-caliber machine guns from tread-tracked armored personnel carriers.

The action centered nine miles northwest of Tam Ky in Quang Tin Province, fourth in the tier of five northern provinces that make up the critical 1st Corps area.

It is in this area—embracing Khe Sanh, Con Thien, Hue and other hot spots—that allied authorities expect the Red high command to mount its next big push.

Communist mortar crews had lobbed 40 rounds before dawn into a night defensive position of some troops of the U.S. Americal Division near Tam Ky, killing one soldier and wounding 25.

Cruising in steel-hulled carriers, a company of the Americal Division spotted and closed with the enemy force—perhaps a battalion or more—at 10:15 a.m. The fight lasted through the day.

Farther north American counterfire from the besieged U.S. Marine base at Khe Sanh broke open a supply of tear gas in a North Vietnamese troop installation nearby. The wind happened to be blowing so as to carry the fumes across the base, and a spokesman said the Marines were forced to don their gas masks "to avoid momentary discomfort."

Rusk and Fulbright Square Off On War

WASHINGTON (AP) — The administration's foreign policy chief and its top Senate critic squared off for a confrontation Monday amid mounting debate over President Johnson's conduct of the war in Vietnam.

Both Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., anticipated that Rusk's testimony before the senate Foreign Relations Committee would range well beyond the listed topic: Johnson's $3-billion request for foreign aid.

Rusk was working on a statement in behalf of foreign aid—and boning up on sharp questions he expects from Chairman Fulbright and other committee doves on Vietnam policy.

Not for two years—since Feb. 18, 1966, when Rusk spent seven hours defending a Johnson call for more funds for Vietnam—has the Southeast Asian conflict loomed so sharply as the prospective No. 1 topic in a public Rusk appearance before the group.

Now the debate is heading into the election year campaign while the war itself has entered a new stage in Vietnam.

Richard M. Nixon, the front-running aspirant for the Republican presidential nomination, has produced a pledge to "end the war and win the peace in the Pacific."

Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., a Foreign Relations Committee member is challenging Johnson for the Democratic nomination, centering his campaign on Vietnam.

Last Thursday Fulbright was joined by Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana and other critics in demanding in the Senate that the President consult Congress before sending any more troops to Vietnam.

Johnson is now weighing a reported plea by the U.S. commander in Vietnam, Gen. William C. Westmoreland, for from 50,000 to 200,000 more men above the 525,000-man ceiling on U.S. forces there now.

Johnson is moving slowly on the troop issue, which bears on major strategic and economic questions. He has named a small committee of top advisers —Rusk, Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford, intelligence chief Richard Helms, foreign aid chief William S. Gaud and presidential aide Walt W. Rostow—to work out answers.

As the war has gone on, relations between the administration and its Vietnam critics have worsened in general and those between Rusk and Fulbright in particular.

Lincoln U. President In 'Full Confidence'

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Lincoln University Board of Curators Saturday gave University President Earl E. Dawson a vote of "full confidence" and said nine "dissident teachers . . . did not follow proper channels in presenting whatever complaints they had."

And in an adjacent building on the Lincoln campus a spokesman for the Missouri State Conference of the American Association of University Professors told the nine "this meeting is not the place to argue the right or justice" of the complaints.

The curators adopted a resolution declaring:

"The action of the dissidents in taking their complaints directly to the news media, the legislature and other agencies, is in clear violation of the rules and regulations of the university and has caused unwarranted and unnecessary harm to Lincoln University.

"The board of curators has full confident in Dr. Earl E. Dawson, president, and the school administration and the board approves all actions taken by the administration in regard to this dispute."

For those of the protesting instructors whose contracts end this June there will be no renewal. One of the nine has a contract that runs into 1970 and another into 1969.

Lincoln was begun in 1867 by a group of returning union soldiers as a college for Negro students. The state took it over a few years later.

It was fully integrated in 1954 and since has become more and more a college attracting white students. Now both the faculty and the student body is well-divided between the races.

In the AAUP meeting Prof. Richard Haswell of Springfield, Missouri State College reported on what information he had obtained about the situation. He said it was his opinion that "this meeting is not the place to argue the right or justice" of the action taken by either side.

One of the nine instructors rose to present his case. He did not identify himself by name but said the Lincoln administration had never questioned the competency of the men but rather had acted in reprisal after the group asked for the dismissal of the history department head, Dr. J. E. Miller.

Psychiatric Tests For Accused Slayer

MOBERLY, Mo. (AP) — William E. Coleman, 36, who is under first degree murder charges in the death of 12 persons in a Moberly tavern fire, has been transferred to Fulton State Hospital for psychiatric tests.

Coleman's transfer was requested by his court-appointed attorney, John Carmody.

Under a ruling in magistrate court Thursday the results of the examination will not be made public.

The fire occurred Feb. 16. Witnesses testified Coleman entered the tavern adjacent to a downtown hotel, spilled gasoline around the interior and fled when fire broke out. Eight men and four women died in the tavern.

Hint At Political Risk For LBJ In New Hampshire

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — There's a hint of political risk for Lyndon B. Johnson in the chilly New England air as New Hampshire prepares to send the first trickle of ballots into the stream of votes that will choose a president.

The Democratic President and Republican Richard M. Nixon virtually are guaranteed of running first on their party ballots in Tuesday's season-opening presidential primary.

The question for both men: By how much?

Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota is challenging Johnson's renomination.

And the President's chief promoter, Gov. John W. King, appears less certain as the polling hours near that McCarthy's Vietnam peace candidacy will be buried beneath write-in votes for Johnson, whose name isn't on the ballot.

King now forecasts a Johnson margin of 3 to 1 over McCarthy, with 40,000 to 45,000 Democratic ballots expected. Two months ago, he was talking in 10 to 1 figures.

King reported that some 23,000 pledge cards, each marked with a registration number, had been returned with commitments to write in Johnson's name.

"To me, it's comforting to think you could get that many people to sign up," King said.

David C. Hoeh, chairman of the McCarthy organization in New Hampshire, said he couldn't guess the outcome—but feels his candidate is progressing.

"If it comes out somewhere in the 30 per cent area, great. Anything over 20 to 25 per cent would be substantial," Hoeh said about McCarthy's share of the vote.

On the Republican side, Nixon needs a smashing turnout to build a winner's image and propel his campaign for the GOP presidential nomination. He is without a major rival on the ballot, but there is the looming, absent figure of New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Still not an announced candidate, but increasingly available, Rockefeller is the object of a late-blooming write-in effort.

Nixon's situation was altered when Michigan Gov. George Romney suddenly pulled out of the primary on Feb. 28. Although Romney's name remains on the ballot, his startling exit leaves Nixon without a major official rival.

The changed Republican situation has shifted much attention to the Democratic race.

McCarthy has been a constant if low-key campaigner. The crowds that turn out to his almost professorial speeches have been small except—on the college campus.

He got a boost last week that could echo in New Hampshire when Johnson decided against contesting him—personally or with a stand-in—for the 72 Democratic Convention delegates to be chosen in the Massachusetts primary April 30.

And he has drawn an increasingly sharp attack from King—the latest, that a substantial McCarthy showing would encourage the Communists in Vietnam.

Six days before the primary, a Rockefeller write-in group headed by former Gov. Hugh Gregg put sample ballots and a campaign plug in the mail to 220,000 New Hampshire households.

Its target is in its name: "The Committee for 15,000 Write in Votes for Rockefeller."

There probably will be about 90,000 Republican ballots Tuesday, and Gregg said he hopes Rockefeller's name will be written in on 15 to 20 per cent.

Prominent Businessman Killed In Plane Crash

CHICAGO (AP) — Edward H. Litchfield, nationally prominent business man and educator, was killed and four members of his family and the pilot were missing and believed dead Saturday after their private plane plunged into fog-shrouded Lake Michigan.

Litchfield, 53, of Coudersport, Pa., was board chairman of SCM Corp., a board member of Avco and several other companies, a former chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh and Gen. Lucius D. Clay's director of civil affairs for Europe after World War II.

His body, clad in a business suit and supported by a life preserver, was found floating five miles off Meigs Field, Chicago's lakefront airport at mid-morning Saturday, some 14 hours after the plane radioed for permission to land.

The crew of the Coast Guard boat which found his body said they found an oil slick, but no wreckage of the plane or any survivors.

Also believed dead were Litchfield's wife, Mary, 42; their son, Edward 11, and De Forest, 4; his mother, Ethel, 81, and the pilot of the two-engine plane, James Looker, 43, of Wellsville, N.Y.

Litchfield and his wife had been vacationing in central America. They flew to Wellsville, near Coudersport, Friday to pick up their two sons and his mother, and then on to Chicago, where they were expected to land at 8:15 p.m.

"Everything seemed normal, they asked permission to land, and that was the last the tower heard," reported Thomas Cusack, acting manager at Meigs Field.

Thruston Morton Says

Must Turn To New Leadership

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican Sen. Thruston B. Morton said Saturday his party risks extinction unless it turns to imaginative new leadership in picking a presidential candidate. He contended the Johnson administration is embarked on a national suicide course in Vietnam and at home.

Morton, former national chairman and permanent presiding officer at the party's 1964 nominating convention, said the GOP can offer America a new approach and itself a new future.

"If it does not," he added, "the Republican party as a national force may well become a memory, and a bitter one at that."

The Kentucky senator said a domestic crisis in race relations "amounts to urban insurrection, or worse, genocide." He also said that under President Johnson the United States is headed toward "foreign policy bankruptcy."

As one who originally supported the President's course in Asia but now has become a spokesman for GOP critics, the Kentucky senator said the administration is saying to the world it may have to destroy Vietnam to save it.

Morton, who has announced he will not seek re-election this year, issued this statement:

The United States and the Republican party teeter at the brink of a disaster that is probably without parallel in the history of our republic.

As a nation we are careening toward a foreign policy bankruptcy that may be irreparable. Back home we face a crisis in race relations that amounts to urban insurrection, or worse, genocide. In fact, the present administration, if not curbed or changed, will be held to account by history for engendering the spirit of national suicide.

Suicide is a term not unfamiliar to those who have seen the Republican party dutifully march over the cliff like a troop of lemmings. At this very moment, my party is once again posed at the edge of the precipice, and perhaps, like the Whigs a century ago, for the last time.

Can either my country or my party change course? Can an administration which holds in trust the destiny of 200 million Americans and the future of the free world repudiate its own policies?

Can a party dominated to a large degree by a rurally oriented and basically conservative congressional wing rid itself of knee-jerk anti-Communism and devote itself to the overwhelming crisis of our cities?

The answers to these vital national questions are, at this very moment, in the hands of the political power structure of the Democratic and Republican parties, and I am afraid the outcome is in doubt.

Boy Pinned Under Truck

A father and 10-year-old son escaped being crushed when the tractor the father was driving and the flatbed trailer loaded with 10,000 bricks overturned on the first curve north of Warsaw about 2:45 p.m. Saturday. The tractor was driven by Reuben Phillips, 33, of Syemour, accompanied by his son, Gregory.

Gregory was pinned in the crushed cab for nearly two hours, while his father was able to free himself and help his son. The boy suffered a fracture of the right arm just above the wrist, fracture of the right thumb, index and middle fingers and several fingers on the hand were badly cut. He also had some slight cuts of the face and head. and bruises.

The father received a cut on the right side of his head, body bruises and several contusions on the back. X-rays did not reveal any fractures.

After the boy was freed from the smashed cab, he and his father were brought to Sedalia to the Bothwell Hospital in the Reser ambulance from Warsaw. They were accompanied in the ambulance by a Dr. Bell of Des Moines, Iowa.

Dr. Bell, who with his wife were enroute back to Des Moins, stopped at the scene. The doctor rendered emergency treatment to the boy and

Viet Poll Of Congress By Church

NEW YORK (AP) — An enterprising Protestant denomination is taking on some unusual tasks, including an effort to let people know what individual congressmen think about the Vietnam war.

"This is a prime moral concern of our times," said the Rev. Dr. Everett Parker, director of the Office of Communications of the United Church of Christ.

"We think it's important to help encourage a fuller clarification of viewpoints between government representatives and the public on this whole matter of peace."

The United Church, a two-million-member communion which has pioneered concrete steps in the cause of Christian reunion, also has undertaken several other uncommon projects, including:

—Setting up watchdog committees in local communities to keep check on radio and television broadcasts, on the lookout against the airing of material reflecting bias against Negroes.

—Establishing community groups to guard against extremist tactics to villify individual public leaders, educators, ministers or institutions by loose accusations or name-calling on the air, or otherwise.

The objective, Dr. Parker said, is "not censorship but balance"—to try to see to it that misleading impressions aren't being foisted on the citizenry about persons or programs by one-sided attacks, from left or right.

Both of the broadcast-monitoring projects have been underwritten by foundations, The one on extremism by grants totalling $85,000 from the Field Foundation and the AFL-CIO, and the one on racism by a $160,000 grant from the Ford Foundation.

Under the plan for guarding against racially distorted broadcasts, steps were under way this week to form local committees in 10 Southern cities, with others to be formed later in many other places, including the Northern communities.

"We'll go into any community where responsible groups want us to come," Dr. Parker said.

Local committees are given guidance on analyzing broadcasts for possible discriminatory material, and when patterns of bias are discovered, evidence is to be documented and discussed with station management.

If, and only if, that effort fails to correct the situation, action would be taken to formally monitor and record allegedly biased programs, with findings and petitions against station license renewal presented to the Federal Communications Commission.

While the various projects are a new sort of operation for a religious body, the United Church is experienced at innovation and initiative.

The denomination itself, a merger of the independent-minded Congregational Christian Churches of British origin and the Evangelical and Reformed Church of German origin, is the first merger in the nation's history to unite traditions of different governing styles and national backgrounds.

One of the denomination's pastors, the Rev. Dr. David Colwell, of Washington, is chairman of the Consultation on Church Union, an effort to unite 10 major denominations.

'Unflappable' Clark Clifford Is Put to the Ultimate Test

By SAUL PETT
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some years ago Clark Clifford was entertaining his mother at dinner in a downtown restaurant when he was called to the phone.

Returning to the table, he announced, with no change of expression, "Mother, our house is on fire. I'm afraid you'll have to skip dessert."

People who know him agree that the new secretary of defense is a monument of unflappability. They may disagree on other traits—on the depth of his thinking and convictions, for example—but to a man they agree on his elegant poise. This, obviously, is no small quality in a man who heads the most powerful, most involved military establishment in the world.

Unflappable himself, Clark McAdams Clifford, advisor to presidents and one of the country's wealthiest lawyers, habitually encourages others to cool it. His clients were among the biggest corporate giants anywhere and to those about to hit the panic button he was fond of telling about the man in the old Western town who saw a building burning. "He ran into the nearest saloon and yelled, 'fire!' —and everybody did."

Clifford now has, as he likes to say, only one client, Uncle Sam, who presumably is given the same cooling advice for much less money.

His law income, it is said, ranged from $500,000 to $1 million a year; his Cabinet salary now is $35,000.

What Uncle Sam is getting for his money is a spectacularly successful man of 61, who has been a consultant and troubleshooter for three presidents, a man said to be a hard-nosed realist with the soothing bedside manner of a Park Avenue doctor attending dowager hypochondriacs, a man who knows his way through the snake pits of government and around the palpitating egos of Congress, a highly methodical, analytical man who disdains the "lazy slovenly thinking" behind the use of such labels as hawks and doves, a man whose admirers insist will be "nobody's pigeon," foreign or domestic.

Clifford's critics tend to find him hawkish. If true, he is a selective hawk.

In all the fiery talk that followed the North Korean seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo, it was Clifford who pointed out that none of the angry countermeasures being suggested by the vengeance seekers or the dashing plots pushed by the Errol Flynn strategists would bring the ship or men back.

In other matters, those familiar with the thinking of the new secretary picture his views thusly: He opposed a bombing pause in Vietnam in the belief that Hanoi would regard it as a sign of wavering American will and "the first step toward our withdrawal." Ultimately, he thinks, the enemy will finally grind down and quit, but only after he is convinced of our determination and "realizes that, after all, we are not like the French."

Clifford does not regard Communist states as a monolithic menace to be feared equally everywhere. He makes a distinction between the aggressiveness of Red China and Red Russia and, hoping for a detente with the one, says, "I am not willing to proceed on the assumption that the Soviet Union must always be our enemy."

But where his predecessor, Robert McNamara, spoke of moving toward "nuclear parity" with the Russians, Clifford talks of the need for "nuclear superiority." In support, he cites hypothetical figures. If intelligence tells us the Russians have 100 nuclear missiles, do we limit ourselves to 100? What, he asks, is the margin of error in our intelligence? Twenty-five per cent? Then do we still limit ourselves to 100 missiles when they may have 125?

Clark Clifford is a tall, elegant man with broad shoulders, sandy-gray hair that rolls back in serenely even waves, a handsome, resolute profile resembling the All-American virility we used to see in the shirt ads, a soft voice that can be as caressing as mink, and the general appearance of a silent screen star who well remembers the days of gold-plated Rolls Royces. He favors striped suits with padded shoulders, wide lapels, double-breasted jackets, wide trousers, and one wonders whether he uses Adolph Menjou's tailor.

Mentally or physically, he is a man who never appears rumpled. Even on the golf course, playing bare-chested in the heat of a Washington summer, it is said that Clark Clifford still looks well turned out. And people who have observed him in high-level White House meetings say that even in the trauma of crisis his careful reasoning and calm analysis never lose their crease.

McNamara, too, is famed for amara, too, is famed for his methodical approach. But, a White House source notes, "McNamara appears supercharged and you can see his mind racing. Clifford's may be racing, too, but it is never visible and he never seems on the razor's edge."

This same source, who is close to Lyndon Johnson, says the President is so impressed with the breadth of Clifford's talents and experience he could have, with equal confidence, appointed him secretary of state or attorney general.

Conversationally, Clifford is a man given to wry understatement expressed in an admixture of vernacular and words of starched formality.

Early in February, when all hell was breaking loose, when Washington lights were burning late over the Pueblo seizure and the enemy offensive in Vietnam, Clifford was trying to do three things at once. He was involved in the complicated process of divesting himself of his law practice and vast stock holdings, he was reading furiously all the things a defense secretary-designate must read, and he was taking part, day and night, in crucial White House conferences. How, a visitor asked, was he managing under the triple pressures?

"I have the feeling," said Clifford, "that if I can weather this period with some equilibrium, it'll be good preparation for the job."

What went through his mind when the President asked him to take the job?

"When the President asks you, when a specific call is issued like a draft, when you think of all his accumulated difficulties and the posture of our country and its complex problems, then, by God, you go.

"I see an incredible opportunity for service. I may get chewed up in the process but . . . Who would want to go into the Cabinet in Coolidge's administration? This is the time to serve. The gravity of the decisions being made are sobering beyond belief."

What were his first impressions of the job?

"The scope of the problems is wider than anyone can imagine until he actually comes in contact with them. I am beginning to perceive the great number of decisions that the secretary must make himself. He cannot sit back and confine himself to high-level policy pronouncements. He must get into the thick of it."

Was he aware, as a former high official of the Pentagon said, that the place was loaded with admirals and generals waiting to ambush a new secretary with "the old chestnuts rejected by McNamara"?

"I am aware of it. I knew ahead of time that there were men who honestly feel their opinion is superior to what was previously accepted. I will have to winnow through these ideas as I go. But I am comforted by the fact that after more than 20 years in government work you get an instinct about certain things."

As a man of great self-discipline, Clark Clifford continually impresses his wife, children and friends with the fact that he can sleep any time he chooses, drinks no liquor and confines himself to three cigarettes a day—one after lunch, two after dinner, no less, no more, no matter how rich the satisfaction of the last draw.

All sources appear to agree that Clifford will get along better with Congress than McNamara, no small factor as Lyndon Johnson gets ready for the quadrennial Super Bowl of American politics.

"McNamara," said a Clifford friend who also is a knowing Washington hand, "gave the impression he suffered fools badly. Clark may not suffer them gladly but he's been in politics long enough to be more tolerant, to take the few extra steps to avoid friction."

Over the years, Clifford's services to presidents have been many and varied. As special counsel, he wrote speeches for Harry Truman and helped write the law that unified and created the Defense Department. He advised Truman on everything from the cold war to how to win re-election in 1948 to the tiniest details of image-making. Have Albert Einstein to lunch; at your next press conference mention a current affairs book you're reading, said one long Clifford memo.

For John F. Kennedy, Clifford supplied the blueprint for the transition of power from Dwight Eisenhower, helped investigate U.S. intelligence after the disaster at the Bay of Pigs, later headed the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board and represented Kennedy in his fight with the steel industry in 1962.

For Lyndon Johnson, Clifford has, among other things, made fact-finding trips to Vietnam, accompanied the President to the Manila conference, helped draw up the strategy by which Johnson eliminated Robert Kennedy as a vice presidential nominee in 1964 and, more recently, been consulted on the President's last State of the Union speech, the Pueblo and assorted crises. He has, in short, become known as an "insider's insider."

Between presidential missions, Clark McAdams Clifford practiced law in Washington, most frequently representing people with government problems. His corporate clients have included Du Pont, General Electric, Radio Corporation of America, International Telephone and Telegraph, Hughes Tool, and Stard Oil.

Boy

enroute to Sedalia gave him a shot to relieve his pain. After the father and son were safely in the hospital, the doctor and his wife continued their trip home.

The father explained he was enroute back to Springfield after getting the load of 10,000 bricks which he estimated weighed in the neighborhood of 20 tons at Chillicothe. He said as they went into the curve he felt a shifting of about five hundred bricks. As they went around the curve the bricks began scattering along the shoulder and the two units flipped upside down next to the small lake along side the highway.

Phillips said a piece of steel went through his pants and his belt causing him to be trapped. He finally released his belt and was able to tear his clothing loose. He is an amputee, and was able to use his one leg to push himself free. He then, with the assistance of some man who stopped, was able to pull loose the seat, but his son's right arm was bent back and under him in such a manner they were unable to free him.

Troopers John Cummings and E. L. Ullery of the Highway Patrol, stationed at Warsaw, arrived on the scene. Cummings climbed into the crushed cab and also tried to free the boy. Cummings remained with the boy encouraging him, "he is one of the bravest little fellows I ever saw," Cummings remarked, 'and talked to me and never shed a tear."

A call for a big wrecker was made and the Sedalia police called for the Shoemaker wrecker to go to the scene. While Shoemaker's wrecker was enroute, a large Hydrocrane of the Western Contracting Corp., of Sioux City, Ia., which was being used at the Kaysinger site near Warsaw, was sent to the scene.

Marion Marcum, of Route 5, Sedalia, operator of the big crane, used a large hook and cables to hook into the cab and lifted it up so the boy could be freed.

While efforts were being made to free the child, the Warsaw Fire Department went to the scene and stood by in case fuel which was escaping caught fire. Traffic on Highway 65 was blocked for more than two and a half hours, and was detoured over the new Kaysinger Bluff Park, through Warsaw and back on Highway 65 at the Osage River bridge, on Highway 65.

The Troopers were assisted by Sheriff Lawrence Phifer of Benton County in directing traffic off of Highway 65.

The tractor-trailer is owned by the Glenstone Block Co., of Springfield.

The boy was admitted at the hospital for further observation following surgery by Dr. Elliott Braverman, who also attended the father.

Democrat

"Chuck" Shelton was elected to serve as temporary secretary.

All cnadidates for city-wide offices were nominated acclamation.

The first nomination was that of Lawrence N. Englund for re-election as police judge. He was nominated by Palmer Nichols.

Adam B. Fischer was nominated by John C. McCloskey, for City Attorney. McCloskey pointed out that he was retiring this year, but he had "enjoyed every year that he had served."

Mrs. Opal Hugelman, who succeeded her late husband, Frank Hugelman, in the office of City Collector, was nominated for re-election by Mrs. Dorothy Blaine.

John M. Blue, who has served for many years as City Assessor, was nominated to seek re-election by S. J. Timborious.

The nomination of Mrs. Perry L. Strole to seek re-election as City Treasurer was made by James E. Durley.

Following the nomination of the candidates to be elected on a city-wide basis, the candidates from each of the four wards for the City Council were presented.

W. C. Cramer introduced Jesse "Sonny" Robinson from the First Ward; R. N. Snavely, Councilman from the Second Ward, introduced Lavern Masters; Palmer Nichols, chairman of the Third Ward, introduced Robert "Bob" Wells as their candidate. Wells has served on the Council before. In the Fourth Ward Chairman Aubrey Case called upon Jim Mathewson, who had been nominated, but could not serve due to a technicality of having not lived in the Ward long enough to introduce the new candidate. Mathewson then introduced Leo Letourneau as the Fourth Ward candidate.

Following the ratification of the Council candidates, Chairman Jones then called upon the delegates to elect a new City Chairman. Jones expressed his appreciation to the Democrats of Sedalia for having given him the honor to serve as the City Chairman, but that he was not a candidate for re-election.

The convention then elected John Vandekamp as the new City Chairman, on the nomination of Cliff Barr. His election was by acclamation.

Mrs. Charles Shelton was then elected as the permanent City Secretary-Treasurer of the Committee.

Chairman Vandekamp then introduced former Mayor Julian H. Bagby, out-going City Attorney McCloskey, County Judge E. L. Birdsong, County Recorder Reno Johnson, Circuit Clerk Bill Lyles, County Assessor Jerry Trotter, and City Councilmen James Schumaker, Walter Jessee, R.N. Snavely, and Ray Simons.

Jessee spoke on retiring this year after six years in the Council but urged the Second Ward Democrats to get out, work for and elect a Democrat to succeed him.

Schumaker also called attention to the $1,050,000 Town and Country Shoes Inc., expansion Industrial bond election which will be held on April 2 in connection with the City election.

Wilbert C. Askew, secretary of the Missouri State Fair, was introduced, and he spoke briefly in regards to getting out people to attend ward meetings and then get the vote out on electionday.

E. Glenn Lewis, elected to the 12-mile Road District, was introduced and spoke briefly.

Delegates from the Second Ward, Third Precinct were accidentally omitted from the lest of delegates selected Thursday night. They were Mr. and Mrs. Floyd C. Lujin, Mrs. Amy Brinkman, Larry Riley, Mrs. Ruth Lindsey, and Albert Lindsey.

Committeeman and woman, Floyd Lujin and Mrs. Amy Brinkman.

Tornado Data Is Provided By Center

The National Severe Storms Forecast Center in Kansas City has outlined specific steps to be taken not only for tornado identification but also for public reaction aimed at safety.

Tornadoes, the center said, occur most frequently in April, May and June generally between 4 and 6 p.m.

The severe storms can occur at any time of day and in any season, however.

The center pointed out that although tornadoes can strike in any of the 50 states, the continental plains of North America see them most often.

A tornado's destructive force comes from its strong rotary winds and the partial vacuum in the center of the vortex.

"As a tornado passes over a building, the winds twist and rip at the outside and at the same time the abrupt pressure reduction in the tornado's 'eye' causes explosive over-pressure inside the building," the center said.

Tornado watches, it said, are the first messages between the National Severe Storms Forecast Center and areas potentially threatened.

A tornado warning means that a tornado has actually been sighted or its presence has been detected by radar. The time to seek shelter is immediately upon hearing the tornado warning.

In the event of such a warning, the center urged that persons within range of the affected area take the following steps: go to a safe shelter, preferably in a tornado cellar, underground excavation, steel-framed or reinforced concrete building. Stay away from windows.

It also urged that radios and television sets be kept on for the latest bulletins on the progress of storms.

If a person is caught in open country, the safest things to do is move away from the tornado's path at right angles. If there is no time, lie flat in the nearest depression, such as a ditch or ravine.

Storm Map

This map is the actual worksheet used by the Weather Bureau radar meteorologist to track severe weather, and is centered at the location of the Kansas City radar equipment. It gives both distance in nautical miles and direction in degrees from that point. The maps provide those listening to broadcasts of storms with quick reference to the actual location of severe weather.

With U.S. Bogged in War, Russia Spreads Influence

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union is expanding its influence in the world while the Vietnam war preoccupies the United States.

Facilitating this expansion is the collapse of the British Empire, with accomplished and planned withdrawals from east of Suez.

The main new sphere of Soviet influence has become the Arabic countries of the Middle East. The Kremlin has made itself their champion since the Arab defeat by Israel in the six-day war last June.

A Soviet fleet of about 45 ships has been put in the Mediterranean to show the flag and provide military strength if needed to back up policy. The U.S. 6th Fleet, for which the Mediterranean used to be virtually a private pond, is only slightly larger.

More and more Arab countries are dependent upon Soviet military aid, a classic means of exercising influence.

Three have started receiving it since the June war—Yemen, Sudan and South Yemen. Such aid already had been going to Egypt, Syria, Iraq, Algeria and Somali. It is being offered to Jordan.

Propaganda here never misses a chance to depict this country as the friend of the Arabs and to vilify the United States for its support of Israel.

The government works assiduously at keeping on good terms with Arabic leaders, treating those who are leftist as ideological brothers and assuring the others, like King Hussein of Jordan, that differences in social systems are no bar to international arrangements.

In Eastern Europe, the Soviet Union uses the Vietnam war to maintain a unity that was threatened as the various countries went their own ways and tired of Soviet domination. "The fight against imperialism in Vietnam" was the main appeal to get the East Bloc, and Communist parties from elsewhere, to take part in last week's unity meeting in Budapest.

In Western Europe the Soviet Union has come to be looked upon more favorably by many who agree with it in condemning the Vietnam war.

This has not produced any big political break-throughs, but the change in image could have important long-term effects.

The Soviet government now has what it obviously considers a favorable atmosphere to exercise more influence internationally and can claim the means to back this up in its rapidly growing fleet.

These means are a recent acquisition and represent a significant change of attitude.

The Soviet Union was long a land-bound superpower, limited by the supply lines of its ground troops. The nuclear strength developed after World War II gave it a stand-off with the United States but could not be used except in cataclysmic showdowns.

The U.S. government, in contrast, built up a military strength that could be applied in selected amounts anywhere in the world.

Military experts here believe that Moscow's decision to match this mobility, by greatly increasing the navy, dates from the Cuba crisis in 1962. This made obvious the limitations of Soviet land power. Nikita S. Khrushchev lacked long-range naval ships to protect Soviet freighters carrying missiles to Cuba.

Two years later, the first units of the Soviet Mediterranean fleet appeared. The June 1967 Israeli-Arab war brought a sharp increase in its strength, to the point where the U.S. 6th Fleet commander called it a "significant threat."

Civil Rights Bill Set For a Vote on Monday

WASHINGTON (AP) — After more than seven weeks of debate, the Senate has forged a civil rights bill which is ready for a final vote. A major provision would outlaw discrimination in the sale or rental of most of the nation's housing.

"I think we got as much in this field as we had any right to hope for," Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield said Friday after the last of the amendments was voted. He termed the open-housing section an upset victory for its supporters.

The Senate approved the amended version 61 to 19, opening the way for a vote on passage Monday.

As the bill now stands, its principal provisions would:

—Gradually prohibit discrimination in the sale and rental of housing. When fully effective Jan. 1, 1970, the ban would cover nearly 70 per cent of the nation's housing units.

Provide federal penalties for interfering by force or threats with the right to vote, serve on juries, use public accommodations, attend public schools and engage in other specifically protected activities.

—Make it a federal crime to cross a state line with intent to incite a riot, to obstruct firemen and policemen engaged in suppressing a riot, or to transport in interstate commerce or teach how to make and use firearms, explosives and incendiary devices in riots.

Extend to American Indians the protections of the Bill of Rights.

Mansfield told reporters he had not thought it would be possible to get a bill through the Senate with open-housing provisions.

He said Sens. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., deserve "the lion's share of the credit."

Under a compromise worked out with Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, who at first opposed any legislation in this field, the coverage was cut back.

Sedalia AA Group Plans Observance

The twentieth anniversary of the Sedalia group of Alcoholics Anonymous will be observed March 17.

One of the original members of the Sedalia group will tell about its beginning and describe its activities to the present time.

Accident Reports For Four Counties

Two fatal accidents were recorded last month in the four-county area of Moniteau, Morgan, Camden, and Cooper Counties, according to Troop F of the Missouri Highway Patrol.

The two fatalities were recorded in Cooper and Camden Counties.

Moniteau County recorded the least accidents with four, resulting in only one injury, and $2,425 property damage. Morgan County followed with eight accidents, eight injuries, $6,995 property damage. Camden County recorded 18 accidents, with one fatality, 10 injuries, and $9,310 property damage. Cooper County also recorded 18 accidents, but had property damage valued at $20,171. Eight injuries also resulted from Cooper County's 18 accidents.

His Hobby Ticks Her Off

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — It's been ticking, tocking, striking, gonging, ringing, chiming, whistling and cuckooing in very cranny of Harold Moses' apartment except the bathroom now for 30-odd years.

His wife, Marie, bought him his 185th clock for Christmas and, frankly, there's no end in sight.

"Love clocks," he says, rushing off to show you a modern German Black Forest owl clock that tells time with its eyeballs.

"Makes me nervous," his wife answers, rolling hers. "It's not just the ticking, it's all the different rhythms, day after day, that really get you."

Tolerant of her husband's hobby, Mrs. Moses claims the bathroom is the only place she can find a minute's peace. She's quick to add, however, that the day is nearing when even that bastion of timelessness will fall.

Yet the clock fever of the retired, 82-year-old manufacturing firm executive has taken him and his wife around the world, visiting museums and clock shops from Japan to South America to Budapest.

"Years ago, when we were poor as Job's turkey, I had a factory job making men's pants," he begins explaining. "And when the machines went kaput, I'd tinker around until I fixed them—and finally got this 'thing' in my fingertips."

The "thing" lay dormant until a trip to Vienna in 1933 after the Moses-Rothschild Co. had liquidated its holdings and Moses found he had time on his hands.

He remained after one tour through the Uhr Museum and, for $1, was shown devices never given public display.

"Guess I went hog wild over those wonderful clocks," he says.

Since then, his collection, including watches, just grew, and grew, and grew.

His approach to collecting—"Clocks that will make somebody ask questions. Like, 'where did you get this?'"—has made him the envy of his fellow hobbyists who belong to the Bluegrass chapter of the National Association of Watch and Clock Collectors.

A syncopated walk through his living room tells why. There's:

—The "hickory, dickory, dock" clock with time told by a white mouse inching its way up the face, only to slide down again after reaching midnight.

—A handmade English pocket watch, circa 1750, with four cases, each snugly fitting over the other and made of silver, tortoise shell and brass.

—A Turkish railroad watch used by conductors.

—An elephant clock with the pendulum swinging from the pachyderm's trunk.

—A "Franklin Delano Roosevelt" clock made as a campaign tie for the late president.

—A wall clock dated 1650 with wood works, wood pegs for the gear teeth and apparently American in origin.

There was a time, his wife recalls with a grimace, when Moses would spend 5½ hours daily keeping every clock wound—until Mrs. Moses searched for a bit of moleskin to attach to the clapper of the Oliver Cromwell.

"When the window was open," she says, "the neighbors could hear it clear across the street."

Now, age has slowed Moses' agile fingertips and only about 20 clocks manage to sound forth every hour: the call of the cuckoo answering the whistling of a tramp, the magnetic turtle waggling before the ogling owl.

"Puts me to sleep," he says.

"Keeps me awake," she answers.

Clearing Office

The plush Congressional office suite that once belonged to Adam Clayton Powell was being vacated when this picture was taken last week, one year and one week after the Harlem Democrat's exclusion from the House. Here, two former Powell staff members, Cleomine Lewis, left, and Mrs. Dolores Gillespie, pack up Powell's files for movement to a small and older office. At left is a picture of Powell. (UPI)

HAS A NAME, WRITES LETTERS BUT DOESN't TALK

LOUISVILLE (AP) — The letter from the out-of-state firm was signed "Phillip Page" so Brainard Ray decided to put in a long distance call to the writer.

The telephone Operator made an exhaustive search but could find no such listing. Finally, she located someone at the firm and asked how she could complete Ray's long distance call to Page.

"I don't know," came the reply. "No wonder you couldn't find his number listed. Phillip Page is our computer."

List Missourians Among War's Dead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three Missourians were on Thursday's casualty list from Vietnam.

Listed as killed in action was Army Spec. 4, Carrel J. Titsworth, son of Mrs. Irene Perkins, Reed's Spring.

Changed from the list of missing to dead from hostile action:

Army Spec. 4, Michael M. Alley, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.V. Alley, Bridgeton; and Army Pfc. Paul J. Miller, son of George E. Miller, Rt. 3, Poplar Bluff.

COMPUTERIZED ANTENNA REPAIRING

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — An electronic device, which will permit computerized "trouble shooting" and improved switching in controlling the direction of satellite tracking antennas, is being developed under contract from the Goddard Space Flight Center of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Sylvania Electronic Products has the contract for the unit, known as a servo controller.

The servo controller is said to result in procedures for locating and repairing faulty antenna components in 10 minutes. Present methods depend on manual hookups of test equipment and frequent referals to maintenance checklists. It can take half a day.

Female Mayors

'Her Honors' Run Towns With Zeal of Reformers

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

"There is some feeling here that a really nice woman shouldn't be involved in city politics, and so the opposition is always wondering just how nice I really am."

The woman mayor who said that—and she's realy very nice—was thinking aloud about the extra burdens that being female imposes upon a municipal chief executive.

Women mayors, of whom there seems to be more these days, and in increasingly larger cities, do all the necessary tasks that male mayors do. Says one: "I have cut enough ribbon to tie up City Hall and turned enough tundra at ground-breakings to bury it."

But, points out Mayor Minnie Coyle of Monterey, Calif., "people expect more from a woman because she is supposed to be more sympathetic. A woman is invited to represent the city at more affairs."

If, then, the mayor is single, how does she cope with social events?

Antonina P. Uccello, a youthful-looking, unmarried 45, and mayor of Hartford, Conn., population 163,000 says: "It depends on the occasion. I'm sometimes escorted, I'll go alone if an escort isn't necessary, and sometimes I go with friends."

Husbands of lady mayors have problems, too, especially the one of how he should be addressed.

Blonde, willowy Norma Walker, who is married to a lawyer, explained what happened when she was mayor of Aurora, Colo.:

"We received mail addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Norma Walker. I thought this was a pretty good idea because it seemed to properly set forth the importance of things without being too gaudy and at the same time admitted my husband's existence. My husband objected and made a proposal of having mail addressed to 'Thomas R. Walker and his wife, the mayor.' I ignored this as an affront to the dignity of the office. . His friends suggested calling him 'His Hardship.'"

Most husbands, though, are their wives' biggest boosters and understand the necessity for TV dinners and minding the kiddies while mamma goes off to make local history.

One evening not long ago when Mayor Ann H. Kilgore of Hampton, Va., was away from home on official business, a distressed lady called her home with a complaint. Since the mayor's husband sounded sympathetic, the woman poured out her troubles to him, ending with: "Mr. Kilgore, I think you ought to know that your wife is mentally unbalanced."

To which Edwin Kilgore, chief of the flight vehicles and systems division at Langley Research Center, replied, "Yes, ma'am, I have known that for years," and hung up.

Actually, it was Kilgore who urged his wife to run for the office, and now that she is in the midst of her third term, he is quite accustomed to hearing the 43-year-old mother of his two teen-age daughters variously introduced in public as Madame Mayor, the City Madame and the Municipal Go-Go Girl.

The typical woman mayor, according to an informal Associated Press survey of ladies holding office, is attractive, feminine and in her 40s, give or take a decade, and has two or three children.

She is energetic but calm, outspoken but objective. Opposition she can cope with, but indifference infuriates her. Her biggest asset, perhaps, is a sense of humor, "without which," one mayor says, "one would cry a lot."

Mrs. Eileen Foley, 49, mayor of Portsmouth, N.H., and a mother of three, points out: "I am not subtle, not naive, and have a sense of humor like nothing human. It's this last virtue that gets me by. It's pretty hard to fight with someone who is continually good-natured."

The typical woman mayor usually has been embroiled in community work most of her adult life—she is often a teacher—and she has moved up to the top office after service on the city council. She is often the only one of her sex on the council and usually the first woman to run for mayor in her town.

Her civic chores may be largely ceremonial—snipping ribbons at supermarket openings, greeting distinguished visitors, presiding at council meetings. More often than her male counterparts, she makes herself available to anyone who wants to air a problem.

"'Tell it to the mayor' is bred into our society," comments Norma Handloff, mayor of Newark, Del. "Consequently, I keep an open door, an open ear and an open phone line."

All women mayors make a point of feminity.

Mayor Coyle of Monterey, Calif., an attractive widow of 51, says: "The courtesies, the rising when I enter a room, are all advantageous." She adds, "I do have to be careful about being bossy or pushy."

She has solved the problem of maintaining her ladylike dignity while bording military vessels in the harbor, part of her mayoral job of greeting dignitaries. When Mrs. Coyle, wearing her modish short dresses, gets to the ladder she sings out to the sailors: "Eyes right!" and ascends without a qualm.

Grace H. Wilson, who has served four terms as mayor of Santa Fe Springs, Calif., and is currently out of office although she says, "No doubt I wil serve again," gives the advice she has always followed: "Think like a man, act like a lady, ask no favors because you are a woman, and you will hold the respect of your colleagues and citizens."

"I have not tried to be overfeminine or to ape a masculine image. I have tried only to be myself," says Marion Phillips of Claremont, N.H., who at 70 has just wound up her third two-year stint as mayor during 18 years on the City Council.

The women who run for the mayoral office are essentially reformers at heart.

There's Nettie Bale, mayor of Colfax, Iowa, pop. 2,500. A grandmother, teacher and wife of a steel plant crane operator, Mrs. Bale first got on the City Council where, she says "I noticed many acts being performed routinely—because they had been done that way for 18 years—with no effort or intention of changing. We women were outnumbered two to three, so consequently our words fell on deaf ears. That is why I decided to run for mayor."

She campaigned on a cleanup program stressing efficiency and economy, and won handily over the incumbent in the November election. Her first chore in office is the complete rewriting of city ordinances, some of which date back 100 years, to bring them up to date so they can be enforced.

Four years ago Jane E. Rosenbach, 45-year-old mother of six, moved with her husband from Denver, Colo., to Sheridan, a suburb. She started going to City Council meetings to see why taxes kept going up without any visible improvements in town to show for it.

"Someone said to me, 'If you don't like what's being done, why don't you run for office?' So I did."

Beta Tau Holds Fashion Show, Card Party

White and yellow spring daisies clustered in flower pots lined the fashion aisle at the Beta Tau Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi annual style show and card party at 8 p.m. Thursday night held at the Smith-Cotton Cafeteria. This event, held each year, is a benefit for the Khoury League (girls.)

Sue Broaddus, president, and Shirley White, chairman of the fashion show and card party, were present. Mrs. Shirley Hawkins was fashion commentator and throughout the show Mrs. C. C. DeLozier played spring selections on the organ.

Columns of white bedecked with daisies centered the stage, displaying a key against a background of white lattice work with the words, "key to success," written on it. Green foliage, lemon trees, and flower pots brimming with yellow daisies flanked the sides of the stage.

Participating as models were Mrs. Janet Warden, Debby Short, Sally Lockett, Bob Beach, Tom Brown, Rod Lindemann, Rhonda Rhoads, Lizabeth Fisher, Sherri Fingland, Mrs. Jeanne Wasson, Joan Cook, Jenny Emery, Gail Crnic, Dana Routszong, Mrs. William F. Brown, Mrs. Kenneth Barr, Mrs. Robert Mason, Rita Fisher, Lynn Lockett, Frances Watkins, Mrs. Barbara Griggs, Alice York, Bonnie Bruening, Mrs. Helen Wolf, Mrs. Carol Joquel, Shirley Swift, Jan Spradling, Glenda Glimpse, Mary Curry, Kelly Purcell, Tracey Purcell, Tonya White, Joyce Reid, Diane Roy, Kathy Arnold, Martha Corson, Cynthia White, Terry Stevenson, Karen Miller, Denise Ann Sparks, Lois DeMott and Janice Marshall.

Following the show prizes were drawn with Mrs. Glen Keithly, Route 3, winning the television set. Cakes were raffled and cookies, candy, coffee, soda, and popcorn were sold.

A card party was then held.

Disabled Widows Eligible for Aid

Under the recently enacted railroad retirement amendments, disabled widows aged 50-59 can now receive monthly benefits, according to the local office of the Railroad Retirement Board. They must be totally and permanently disabled and unable to work in any regular employment. To be eligible, a widow must have become disabled before her husband's death or within seven years afterwards; or if she had been receiving monthly survivor benefits anytime after his death, she must have become disabled within seven years after those benefits stopped.

Railroad employees are urged to help locate such disabled widows of railroaders who may now be eligible for benefits. A disabled widow who thinks she may be eligible should get in touch with the board's nearest office as soon as possible.

Hearing Booklet Available Here

The parents of a deaf or hard of hearing child can be his greatest handicap, warns Roy A. Davidson, executive director of the Missouri Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults.

He points out that parents can play an important role in helping their children adjust to their disabilities or discourage them from even trying.

A new booklet titled "Do's and Don't's for Parents of Pre-School Deaf and Hard of Hearing Children" is available free of charge from Mrs. John Swezy, 2412 South Quincy, Easter Seal chairman of the Pettis County Easter Seal Society.

Written by Dr. Jean Utley Lehman, professor of special education at California State College, the booklet is a valuable guide to parents and others who work with hearing handicapped pre-school children.

Italian Students Join Brothers in Rebelling

ROME (AP) — Seething student resentment against an antiquated university system has exploded this winter into anarchy on the campuses, challenging the entire Italian establishment.

Disillusioned after years of decrying facilities and teaching methods, student activists have extended their protest to Italian society in general. They express scorn at what they see as its race for mass consumption.

The slogans of the revolt are "Student Power" and "Global Dispute with the System." The heroes include Che Guevara and Rap Brown. Traditional leftists —Communists, Socialists and independent intellectuals—are ridiculed by this new, isolated breed of angry young man.

Sporadic student strikes have given way to vandalism, violence and sit-ins that last for weeks.

Almost all Italy's 33 state-run universities have been hit by demonstrations since fall. In some schools the academic year is in danger of being nullified. The rector of Florence University turned in his resignation. Forty-one professors asked the head of the University of Rome to quit.

The crisis came to head in the capital 10 days ago. The city's worst riots in a decade erupted after police were called to pull sit-ins out of classrooms.

Some of Italy's universities date from the Middle Ages. One foundation of the Italian university law is legislation approved by the Savoy Kingdom of Sardinia in 1859. The last major overhaul of the law came under fascism in 1933.

Students complain the system favors pockets of power around deans and full professors who are accused of arbitrary curriculum changes—and labeled "dinosaurs of culture," "Barons," and "snake charmers."

Since they are allowed to carry on professional or political careers, some of the professors are not around to hear the name-calling.

A few show up for classes no more than four times a year. Prime Minister Aldo Moro and Foreign Minister Amintore Fanfani are professors.

The students want an end to classicism and formalism and more courses they feel would prepare them for an industrialized world—like market research and public relations.

The system has had to cope with a postwar student population explosion whose dimensions were unforeseen. There now are five university students for every 1,000 persons in Italy, compared with 3.7 in 1945.

Faculties and facilities have not kept up. The ratio of permanent and nonpermanent professors to students is 1 to 31.1 compared to the 1957 ratio of 1 to 29.3.

The dropout rate skyrockets. Rome University's student population of 60,000 grows by 20 per cent a year, the number of graduates by 0.9 per cent.

Parliament has passed piecemeal laws appropriating millions of dollars for more teachers, school buildings and scholarships in the next five years.

A fundamental reform law has been blocked for two years by political bickering. With the close of the legislature imminent, the full bill stands no chance of passage now.

It would require professors to teach full-time, establish departments to group similar subjects now listed under different schools, and include students and lecturers on university governing bodies.

Some students would not be happy even if the bill became law. They charge it would allow loopholes for faculties to govern without them and would leave intact what they describe as the professor-dictator system.

Air Pollution Is Top Secret

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) —The Air Force has learned how to burn its classified documents without polluting the air—much to the satisfaction of the El Paso County Health Department.

There were complaints the Air Force was violating an antiair pollution ordinance when it burned secret files and other documents at the Aerospace Defense Command headquarters here.

A health officer said his investigation showed a gas furnace was being overloaded with classified material. "Now that the personnel know how to use the equipment, we aren't getting any complaints," he said.

Will Buy Building

BRUSSELS (AP) — France will pay a bit less than $17.6 million to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization for the former NATO council building at Paris' Port Dauphine which was abandoned when NATO moved to Belgium, informed sources reported.

What is considered to be the most interesting and amusing member of the rat-and-mouse family is the wood rat, sometimes called the trade rat, because of its unusual habits.

Pompidou Loyal To De Gaulle

By HARVEY HUDSON
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Georges Pompidou is like a faithful son working for an autocratic father in the family business.

The initiatives come from Charles de Gaulle. Pompidou as premier is charged with pushing through the details. There's never any question who is the boss.

Discretion is an essential part of Pompidou's role. He never hints at how much he is taken into De Gaulle's confidence, and would never make known any disagreement between them. Unvarying respect that borders on adulation for De Gaulle has no doubt helped smooth Pompidou's path.

Pompidou's portly figure and large head with bulky nose and bushy eyebrows are well known to the French public. Not many pretend to know the man though he has been premier six years.

Outside France, few see beyond the towering figure of Gen. de Gaulle. This is especially true since De Gaulle keeps the running of foreign affairs as a personal responsibility, with Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville as his operating aide. The premier has a predominant position in domestic economic policies, which tend to bore De Gaulle.

The president is reported to have prepared a political testament—on tape or paper—which will be revealed after his death. This testament presumably names Pompidou as his hand-picked choice to succeed him, but Pompidou avoids talk on the subject. He says that he is shocked by talk of "after Gaullism" since it implies the death or incapacity of one of France's great heroes.

In any case, for Pompidou to succeed De Gaulle as president he would have to be elected by popular vote. This might be a formidable challenge, since De Gaulle himself—with his reputation as a two-time savior of France—got only 55 per cent of the vote when he was re-elected in 1965 to a 7-year term.

When Pompidou was appointed premier he had never stood for public office. He was a teacher who was recommended to De Gaulle in 1944 as someone who could write. He was taken on as a member of De Gaulle's staff and quickly rose to a position of confidence.

He has achieved little grassroots popularity but is looked on as a capable administrator of De Gaulle's policies—all he has ever really tried to be.

A big question mark remains: whether he could strike out on his own and conquer the hearts of the people. The conditions of a changeover might be the determining factor.

In any case, he would promise no changes from De Gaulle's policies. He says he sees no reason why Gaullism should not survive long after De Gaulle has given up office.

Mayor Maggy Conn Spreads Herself Thin in Herrick

HERRICK, Ill. (AP) — The sign on the blacktop said, "Herrick — Pop. 440."

"You shouldn't ever come to a town like this wearing a white collar," Mayor Maggy Conn told a visitor. "The people here are very suspicious. Last time someone dressed like you came through here was a federal man trying to bring in a town water system."

That was the advice of Mayor Maggy. It was also advice of the police chief, fire chief, water commissioner, sanitary engineer and the dog catcher. Because Maggy Conn, 72, holds all the titles.

The police chief has no policemen, the fire chief has no fire truck and the town has no hydrants. It was not until 1966 that the water commissioner got some water to commission and the sanitary engineer some facilities to engineer. But the dog catcher has never wanted for dogs.

Mayor Maggy Conn presides over Town Council meetings, sports a revolving light on her station wagon, carries a pistol, doles out the water, chases dogs, writes a column in the Herrick weekly and wears a wig.

A Republican in a town she describes as 95 per cent Democratic, she won election in 1965 for a four year term by a count of 106-6 and her name wasn't on the ballot.

"I'd have gotten even more votes if some of these old buzzards could write," she said.

Born Lela Margaret Adams in Herrick in 1895, her parents moved 28 times before she reached ago 20. The hotel her father owned went broke, and the family began a succession of moves.

"My mother's friends would ask me what I wanted to be when I grew up," Mayor Maggy said in an interview. "I'd tell them I wanted to be an actress, and my mother would bat me clear across the room. In those days being an actress was considered two levels below a prostitute."

But she began winning amateur talent shows in St. Louis at age 17, and her career was begun.

"I never asked for an agent," she said. "They always came looking for me."

From 1922 to 1929, Maggy said she worked nightclubs and small theaters in and around New York. But the long road trips ruined two marriages. When she left the theater, she lived in Florida and California, then returned to Herrick in 1962 to be with her ailing mother.

"One thing led to another," she said. "and I'm still here."

Mayor Maggy popped back into the present quickly after talking about the old days.

"I don't know who voted for me, or who'll ever vote for me again because I've told every one of them where to go at one time or another," Mayor Maggy said.

Mayor Maggy says she has made improvements in Herrick. She purchased the town garbage truck, for example. She likes to point out that shen she took office Herrick had an annual budget of $400 a year. Last year, the budget was $4,000. Of course, Maggy's salary has to be deducted from that. It's $1 per month.

Mayor Maggy has met opposition.

"There are four vacant buildings along Main Street," she said. "Three years ago some young fellow came through looking for a place to set up a small factory. But you know, no one would rent any space. Those old fossils are afraid someone will come in and make them get off their other ends and move into this century."

Mayor Maggy isn't old at 72,. With makeup, she passes for 40; without it you'd figure in the 50s. At age 71, she danced and sang her old songs at a convention of newsmen. She wore a miniskirt and mesh nylons.

"It's mostly old people here," she added. "I figure there are exactly 50 widows and only eight widowers. You'd think it would be a wild leap year, but half of them can't walk let along chase a man, and the other half wouldn't know what to do if they caught one."

Rail Service Has a Place, Says the ICC

CENTERVILLE, Iowa (AP) — Paul J. Tierney, chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission, declared Thursday night that "rail passenger service has a place in the national transportation system of tomorrow."

Tierney, 51, came here to speak by automobile because this South Central Iowa town has no public transportation.

He told a Chamber of Commerce audience: "Adequate and reasonably priced transportation is a fundamental necessity for the future growth of less urbanized regions."

Tierney called for federal subsidies to beef up railroad passenger service.

Centerville lost its last passenger train recently when the ICC authorized the Rock Island Railroad to discontinue its Golden State train.

Motorist vs. Train Is Called a Draw

TOPEKA (AP) — A motorist tangled with a speeding passenger train and came out of it alive late Thursday night.

Union Pacific officials said the City of St. Louis streamliner was doing 70 to 80 miles an hour when it hit the car three miles west of Topeka, scattering wreckage along the tracks for three more miles.

The driver, Lyle Dinger, 34, of Wamego, Kan., was found in some wreckage near the point of impact. At a Topeka he was reported in satisfactory condition with cuts and bruises.

Poles Wage Battle On Censorship

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's intellectual community has appealed for less censorship and more freedom of cultural expression.

Writers, actors, theater directors and students registered their concern that the development of Polish culture is being harmed by the stiff controls of Wladyslaw Gomulka's Communist government.

The indications are that their pleas will fall on deaf ears.

The latest round in the battle between controls and freedom of expression was set off by the closing of a classical Polish play Jan. 31.

The play is "Dziady", or Forefather's Eve, a long and complicated saga by 19th century poet Adam Mickiewicz about Poland's suffering under Russian tsarist rule. It is standard reading in schools and regularly performed on the stage.

For the present season at Warsaw's National Theater, director Kazimierz Dejmek fashioned a trim, spicy production that was approved by government censors and drew praise from many quarters, including Communists, Western diplomats and even the controlled press.

It was being too well received. Lines with anti-Russian import were drawing raucous applause —even, according to one theatergoer, from a visiting Soviet drama group.

The government considers the Soviet Union as its closest ally and the reaction was apparently becoming an embarrassment. "Dziady" was ordered closed by the Ministry of Culture.

The official explanation was that an organized audience was indulging in "hooligan excesses." The production, once given official approval, was labeled "petty political."

One hears from Poles, including Communists, that party first secretary Gomulka has little love for intellectuals.

Closed-door literary trials, where the state prosecution makes effective use of a Stalinist law on written material "deemed harmful to the interests of the Polish state," show the sensitivity of his regime toward controversial subjects.

Last month a critic was sentenced to three years for writing a musical spoof about prominent Poles.

Two Viewpoints on Effect Of TV Upon Children

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Television's soft, vulnerable underbelly remains, year in and year out, its programming for children.

Some educators, psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers, and parents attack the apparently endless unreeling of elderly cartoon features, starring comedy cats, dogs and other anthropomorphic creatures and the aged "Our Gang" and Ritz Brothers comedies with emphasis often on cruel practical jokes.

They speak of conditioning youngsters to scenes of violence and, worse, turning youngsters of tender years into passive viewers instead of doers, spectators instead of participants.

On the other side of the programing coin, however, are some child experts who feel that children can work out their own hostilities by seeing rough housing in comedy forms on the small screen; that disturbed children will react inevitably to other stimuli if television's influences were removed. And a vast number of parents are happy indeed that on weekend mornings when mommy and daddy may want to catch a few extra winks, junior settles down quietly to enjoy "Frankenstein Jr.," "King Kong" or "Davey and Goliath"—three Saturday morning cartoons among the 30-odd which are available on the network stations in the New York area alone.

Thus, while children's programing generally comes under the guns, the few programs upon which the adult experts smile assume an importance and stature that sometimes seems quite beyond their content.

In the forefront is CBS' "Captain Kangaroo," which has been perking along for 13 years, amusing and gently instructing youngsters from about 4 to 8, with its puppets Mr. Moose and Bunny Rabbit, with Mr. Greenjeans, documentary films and occasional guests who do everything from tightrope walking to demonstrating handcrafts.

Another show, "Romper Room," taped in Baltimore and with a small syndication on local stations around the country, also is highly regarded.

CBS, for a second season, is now running a series of children's motion pictures in a Sunday afternoon spot. Most are foreign-made films—Russian, Japanese, French—and appeal mainly to youngsters beyond the "Captain Kangaroo" stage.

There are also CBS' occasional special programs by the child-oriented Prince Street Players. NBC occasionally has a special program for children.

However, one hard fact of television life that must be faced is that children, like opera lovers, lacrosse fans and bridge players, are a minority audience. Commercial television by its basic structure is a mass medium striving to appeal to the largest number of people at one time in order to win sponsors' support.

Therefore, last spring when word came from the National Educational Television network that a modest taped show out of Pittsburgh called "Misterogers Neighborhood" would have to cease production for lack of funds, the anguished response of parents and children came as something of a surprise.

Upshot was that some N.E.T.-affiliated stations subscribed production funds, matched by another $150,000 from the Sears-Roebuck Foundation, and Fred Rogers, a 39-year-old Presbyterian minister with a degree in music and a fantastic understanding of children, was back in business.

The series is seen on educational stations covering some 45 areas—not a big syndication by commercial standards—and is quite different from the run-of-the-mill kiddie shows.

Dr. Barnard In Defense Of Surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. Christiaan N. Barnard, the pioneer heart-transplant surgeon from South Africa, has told congress only one standard should be applied—and only by doctors—in deciding who should receive a new heart: "Who is the sickest patient."

Barnard testified before a Senate Government Operations subcommittee Friday that a proposed commission to study legal, ethical and social aspects of heart-transplant operations is an insult to your doctors."

"Who decides where the general should attack? The public?" Barnard asked the four senators. "No. I don't think the public is qualified to make the decision. The general is qualified to make the decision."

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., asked which of several patients should be chosen if just one donated heart is available.

"Operate on the patient who needs it most," replied Barnard.

Then Ribicoff outlined a hypothetical situation in which a doctor would have to choose one patient to receive a new heart from among a millionaire, a senator, an industrialist and a laborer.

"I've just explained it to you," Barnard said. "Who is the sickest patient?"

"None of these problems are new problems. You can't tell me one new problem.

Barnard has performed two heart-transplant operations. His first patient, grocer Louis Washkansky, died after 18 days, but his second, retired dentist Philip Blaiberg is still alive after receiving his new heart on Jan. 2.

Use Sign Language In Church

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A church abandoned because buzzing planes at the nation's busiest airport drowned out the prayers and sermons has become home base for a jet age circuit preacher's silent ministry.

Only the deaf worship now in the Rev. Walter Busby's 40-member parish, unique in Florida.

They aren't disturbed by noise from landings and takeoffs at suburban Opa-Locka Airport, busiest in the nation with 596,949 landings or takeoffs last year. The planes' approach takes them directly over the weathered white cross on the Spanish tile roof of the church.

The Lutheran pastor has all five senses but gives his sermons, the liturgy of the service and leads prayer and hymns with the hand language of the deaf.

Behind the free-standing altar — turned so he can face his parishioners as they read his fingers — Pastor Busby folds his hands to say, "Let us pray."

Another Lutheran congregation built and used the adobe-colored building in which Trinity Deaf Zion now worships. But Harry F. Laduke, president of the earlier congregation, said "Our church body decided in 1960 that, with the airfield flight pattern being right over the roof, and our fronting on busy Northwest 27th Avenue, the noise Sunday after Sunday was affecting our attendance."

Laduke advertised in local newspapers and the first inquiry was from a representative of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormon).

"I explained to him the noise and confusion that caused us to want to sell," Laduke said. "He went away and never came back."

Eventually, an ad led to purchase of the building for more than $40,000 by the National Deaf Zion of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod.

Services at Trinity Deaf Zion are in the evenings, Sunday and Wednesday, because Pastor Busby ministers each Sunday morning to other deaf congregations—in Tampa, 200 flying miles away, and Pensacola, about 500 miles away.

In his official church role as missionary to the deaf in Florida since 1966, Pastor Busby also goes to north Florida for visits to five children at Sunland Training Center for the retarded in Marianna, services for 35 deaf patients at Chattahoochee State Mental Hospital, and to hold service and Monday Bible classes for 95 children at the Florida School for the Deaf.

Sedalia, Mo., Sunday Morning, March 3, 1968 Section B

LAUNCHING THEIR CANOE—These two Girl Scouts are preparing to take part in a Council-sponsored float trip held each year for Cadettes and Senior Girl Scouts.

Girl Scouting: Values To Hold and Worlds to Explore

Sedalia Girl Scouts, with 3¾ million other Girl Scouts and Girl Guides all over the world, celebrate their 56th birthday this week, March 10-16. Girl Scouts today participate in more activities than girls of that age have ever been able to before.

Miss Christine Purdy, Columbia, will represent the Heart of Missouri Girl Scout Council, of which Sedalia is a part, by studying music in a camp setting just 40 miles north of New York City. Miss Clydia Smith, Sedalia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Smith, will represent the Heart of Missouri Council with a pack on her back camping through the mountains of Tennessee on a trip called the Tennessee Trek.

Miss Anne Heinzler, Marshall, will represent the Council in a work project for Senior Girl Scouts and senior-age boys in Boxwood State Forest, Mass. Miss Virginia Woodruff, Columbia, will go to Rockwood, a National Girl Scout Program Center, in Maryland to represent the Heart of Missouri Council.

There experiences are a far cry from the image that many people have about Girl Scouting. That's partly because Girl Scouting has changed over the 56 years of its existence—but, even more, because the world has changed.

From their founding on March 12, 1912, Girl Scouts have been active. It's part of their tradition to be ahead of the times. Early in their history, when a woman's place was only in the home, Girl Scouts were encouraging girls to play basketball, hike through wilderness areas and learn about airplanes.

Of course, they learned about the domestic arts, as well—and today's Girl Scouts still do. The first Girl Scouts also pledged themselves to a way of life based on honor, integrity, courtesy and service.

The leaders of Sedalia's Girl Scouts are guiding today's Girl Scouts to make that same promise.

Grew From 12 Girls To 70 Nations

By Annetta Grainger
Senior Scout

Integrity, reliability, willingness, and enthusiasm are only a few of the words that can accurately describe Girl Scouts.

Although having a minute-beginning of twelve girls in 1912 in Savannah, Ga., Girl Scouting in Sedalia has reached approximately 700 members. Girl Scouting is not confined to the United States. There are over 70 countries in which it exists.

The youngest are the Brownies, grades 2 and 3. Their program revolves around the 3-B's: be discoverers, be ready-helpers, and be friend-makers. Each of these develop an inquiring, willing, and pleasant character.

Grades 4 through 6 are the Juniors. The basic objective for this group is to obtain and fortify definite skills which will be beneficial throughout their lives. Their achievement is shown in badges they wear.

Third, Cadettes who are 12 to 14 increase and develop more distinct skills which will make them more successful in their approach toward womanhood.

Seniors, 15 through 17, acquire skills of flexibility. They apply their skills in service to the many aspects of a community in which an individual participates.

Scouting activities are centered around an understanding of duty, trustworthiness, loyalty, courtesy of other's principles, friendliness toward all, and an ethical approach toward life.

Girl Scouts give assistance to the needy and handicapped. They cheer those who are confined to a hospital or rest home. The essence of all the projects and services is to gain knowledge and actual experience.

VERY BUSY — Marilyn Rhoades, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rhoades, is absorbed in her work as she prepares a meal at the Sedalia Surf Club.

READY TO TRAVEL—These two Sedalia Girl Scouts are packed and ready to start for camp, one of the many summer activities in which local Girl Scouts participate.

Stolen Item Talks

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — The Highland Pet Shop was broken into and the burglar made off with one toucan bird, two monkeys and a parrot who says, "Hello."

Evening Ceremony Unites Rhonda Masters, Donald Cook

Traditional wedding selections were played on the organ at the marriage of Miss Rhonda Kay Masters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vern D. Masters, 1403 East Sixth, and Donald Paul Cook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Cook, 1717 South Park at 7 o'clock the evening of Saturday, Feb. 24 at the East Sedalia Baptist Church. The Rev. Medford E. Speaker performed the double ring ceremony. The altar was appointed with arch candelabrum entwined with palm leaves and white satin bows. Two palm stands and a large white pedestal arrangement of white gladioli and chrysanthemums also adorned the nuptial setting.

Mrs. Clyde Waters, 507 East Fifth, was organist, and Miss Cheryl Bechtel, 2109 West Third, sang, "Because," and "I Love You Truly."

Master Randy Dale Masters, brother of the bride, and Miss Neala Ann Janney, 1405 East Sixth, were candlelighters. Miss Janney wore a white ribbed pique A-line dress accented with blue satin ribbon on the bodice. Blue satin shoes and headpiece complimented her ensemble and she wore a fragrant white carnation wrist corsage.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor length A-line gown of white silk satin with a Chantilly lace bodice and sweeping scooped neckline encrusted with seed pearls. Her long lace sleeves tapered to points over the wrists and the flowing train of Chantilly lace, attached from the waist, was accented with seed pearls. Her fingertip veil of soft silk illusion fell from a coronet of tiny pearls. Her only jewelry was a single pearl pendant, a gift from the groom. The bride's flowers were a semi-cascade of white carnations.

Miss Donna Rae Poundstone, 1008 Leone, maid of honor, and Mrs. Melva Fajen, Morris Trailer Court, bridesmaid, wore sleeveless street length dresses of blue Chantilly lace over matching crepe. Blue silk veils were attached to matching circular headpieces and the attendants also wore matching blue shoes. Flowers were blue tipped carnation colonial bouquets nestled with white ribbon streamers.

Michael Cook, 1717 South Park, brother of the groom, was best man and Stephen Bowers, 1008 East Seventh, was groomsman. Ushering duties were performed by Jack Leet, 410 South Lafayette, and Joe Kares, Route 3.

The bride's mother wore a tunic style white and silver dress of rayon and silk with matching silver accessories. The mother of the groom was attired in a navy blue crepe dress with matching accessories.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church basement with approximately 200 guests present.

A three tiered white wedding cake enriched with tiny blue roses centered the bridal table which was covered with an all white lace cloth with underlay of blue. Smilax and a crystal candelabrum holding blue candles surrounded the nuptial cake.

Miss Terry Coats, 1223 East Ninth, Miss Beverly Reese, 1406 East Sixth, served cake and Mrs. Elsie Janney, 1405 East Sixth and Mrs. Norma Baker, 1521 East Sixth, served punch. Miss Karen Bartlett and Miss Kay Bartlett, 1004 South Murray, were in charge of gifts. Mrs. Jeane Bell, Mrs. Cora Fay Reese, Mrs. Doris Moon and Mrs. Katherine Stuart helped in the kitchen. Miss Pamela Gerrish, 810 East 14th, presided at the guest book.

For a trip to Bagnell Dam and the Lake of the Ozarks the bride wore a cluster of white carnations along with her ensemble.

The bride is a graduate of Smith-Cotton High School and works in the scheduling department at Town and Country Shoes. The groom attended Smith-Cotton High School and has completed four years in the Marine Corps. He is currently employed at Jordon's Hauling Company, 32nd and Grand.

The couple is at home on Route 3.

For a wedding trip to Arkansas, the bride selected a navy blue shift with coordinating red, white, and blue plaid coat. Red patent accessories and a white orchid completed her costume.

The bride is a 1967 graduate of Southern Boone County School, Ashland, and attended Southwest Baptist College at Bolivar. She is now employed with M. F. A. Ins. at Columbia.

Dempsy Jenkins' Celebrate 25th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Dempsy Jenkins, Knob Noster, were honored Feb. 25 by their daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Mayes, Great Falls, Mont., and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Frazier Knob Noster, with an open house at the Frazier home, Knob Noster, to observe their 25th wedding anniversary. Eighty friends and relatives called throughout the afternoon.

Upon the serving table, covered with a lace cloth over blue, was centered a triple tiered wedding cake, flanked by silver candles and a bouquet of blue and white chrysanthemums. The cake, which was baked by Mrs. George Clear, was served with punch, coffee, mints, and nuts. Serving were Mrs. Leola Peterman, Knob Noster, mother of Mr. Jenkins, Mrs. William Thompson Berlin, Pa., and Mrs. Melvin Williams of Lee's Summit.

Gifts were received on a table covered with a hand crochet cloth.

Mrs. Jenkins, the former Mary Louise Williams, is the daughter of Mrs. Bob Williams of Knob Noster and the late Mr. Williams. Mr. Jenkins is the son of Mrs. Leola Peterman of Knob Noster, and the late Walter Jenkins.

The couple was married Feb. 27, 1943 in Leeton at the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. James Mohler.

Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins have spent their entire life in the Knob Noster vicinity, where he is a farmer. Mrs. Jenkins is employed by Unitog in Warrensburg. The couple have two daughters, Mrs. Scott (Sharon) Mayes, Mrs. Ken (Carol) Frazier, and three grandchildren, Shelly and Scotty Mayes, and Tina Frazier.

Mrs. Jenkins wore a three piece red suit with black accessories and a corsage of white and blue mums.

Mr. and Mrs. Mayes and family, who were unable to be present, called from Great Falls, Mont., to congratulate her parents. The Rev. James Mohler, 98, of Leeton, who officiated at the wedding, was also present for the celebration. Mrs. Jenkins' mother, Mrs. Bob Williams, who was celebrating her 74th birthday, was also honored with a special birthday cake.

The Way to Beauty

Extra Care Needed While Waiting

By PATRICIA KING
NEA Beauty Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — While pregnancy is the happy prelude to the biggest event in a woman's life, it can also be a dangerously careless weight-gaining nine months.

Although this period can be awkward, you needn't feel ungainly or uncomfortable or that you're getting in your own way.

This can be a healthy, happy and beautiful time for you if you make it so. However, it will take a little extra care.

In most cases, during pregnancy your body is in good condition because of the special medical care you're getting. Nature helps by pouring out a plentiful supply of beauty-giving hormones. But, in addition, you must do your part by watching your weight, giving special consideration to your complexion, hair and make-up and by getting lots of rest.

It should be obvious that at this particular time you need all the extra attention you can give yourself. Unfortunately, many women think that because they are out of shape they look unattractive anyway, so why bother? But your husband and children especially want you to look your prettiest and well-groomed while you all play the waiting game.

TO STAY BEAUTIFULLY WHOLESOME while you play the lady-in-waiting game continue to eat sensibly, exercise daily and continue proper care of your skin. Fresh fruit is far less dangerous than a piece of pie or candy and with the proper style maternity clothes you can camouflage the new shape you're in. For awhile, anyway.

According to the chief of obstetrics at Roosevelt Hospital in New York City, the most important thing to watch is your weight for medical as well as cosmetic reasons. Watch your intake of starches and sugar and keep your weight gain down to between 15 and 20 pounds.

Be discriminating about fattening foods but especially in the first three months. That's when you gain the quickest.

That old chestnut about eating for two should no longer be taken seriously unless, of course, you desire to wind up as two of you after the birth of your baby.

Your waist will be the first of your figure to go. But don't stop exercising. Ask your doctor for a mild exercise. You've got to remain physically active and walking is a good way to do it. When you rest after a brisk walk, be sure to get your feet up to prevent unsightly varicose veins.

On the fashion side, choose dresses (the one-piece styles are the most flattering) in colors most becoming to you. Stick to styles that are simple, well-cut, have room for expansion and have a minimum of fluff and ornamentation. Don't adorn yourself with attention-getting jewelry.

By all means, don't be carried away with exotic, highly styled or Alice-in-Wonderland hair styles. Don't think you'll divert attention from your tummy by doing something wild to your head. Instead, balance your look with a simple hairdo that is easy to maintain. Be sure to be faithful to your brushing and keep your locks clean and sparkling.

As for make-up, the natural, wholesome look is always the best for mothers-to-be. Heavily made-up eyes don't really deliver the message that goes with impending motherhood and, since you're naturally pretty, now you can soften the cosmetic approach.

Keep busy all the time but most of all about three weeks before your due date. That ninth month can seem 27 years long.

The Way to Beauty

Make-up Soft as the Dawn

By PATRICIA KING
NEA Beauty Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The beauty look that will be in fashion this Easter is the innocent, the coquette, the Gainsborough.

Pure innocence, femininity played to the hilt and nonstop romance—that is the fling thing for spring. And it's completely alluring.

The flirtation unfurls with your romantic Easter hat, recklessly flaunting a brimful of spring flowers above a tumble of curls. And beneath this frill of femininity belongs the prettiest face you can put on for Easter Sunday.

Make-up can be fun if you make it as soft and as flattering as it should be this season. The gentle, youthful and romantic look of today will enhance your every feature if you use the subtle approach in color, expertly use the correct brushes and take pride in a lovely appearance. Your finished portrait (this one not by Gainsborough) should reflect your natural beauty.

To create your own Gainsborough portrait, begin with your fluffy liquid foundation, and the best way to apply foundation is to think of your face as a "T." Smooth your foundation over the right side, left side, then across the top of the "T," your forehead. Pay special attention to the eye area and crevices around the nose. Skin tones change from season to season, so remember to update your foundation shade.

A radiant blush on the cheeks adds a flattering vitality to the skin and a sparkling clarity to the eyes. Choose a shade that will complement your skin tones.

Make-up is used to create a beautiful eye setting so be sure to play up your eyes this Easter. A touch of tender green or blue shadow here, a twirl of mascara there, will bring your eyes beautifully into view.

Brush your brows daily to remove powder particles and this practice will also help form your basic brow line. Use short, feathery strokes out toward the temple, never downward. A downcast line is aging.

Eye shadow should be no more than a subtle shading of color and should be chosen to give the greatest color emphasis to your eyes. Apply shadow to your entire eyelid and let the deepest color tone appear next to your lash roots. Fade it softly into the eye fold.

Wake up your eyes with the skillful use of eyeliner drawn close to the lash roots in order to make your eyes seem larger. Start at the inner corner and work across the eyelid stopping at the outer edge corner.

A lash-building mascara will make fine lashes appear more luxuriant, longer and thicker. Twirl mascara over your upper lashes only, using a second coat for more coverage.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

THE GAINSBOROUGH GIRL will walk in the Easter Parade and her wide and wonderful flowery hat will top a feminine silhouette. Your face will echo the pretty pastels and glowingly echo the smooth hint of a blush on cheekbones, tip of the nose, forehead and chin.

Life Insurance—II

Four Basic Types of Policies

"Families need to understand the various types of life insurance policies if they are to set up an insurance program that fits their particular needs," says Dr. Edward J. Metzen of the family economics staff of the School of Home Economics at the University of Missouri.

Dr. Metzen answers the following important questions concerning types of life insurance:

Q — What are the types of life insurance policies?

A — There are four basic types — term, straight life, limited payment, and endowment.

Q — What are the essential differences between these four types?

A — The most important difference is in the relative importance of the protection and savings features. Protection is the basic purpose of life insurance. There are degrees of difference in the amount of protection and savings in various types of policies.

Q — What is term insurance?

A — Term insurance is the least expensive type of life insurance. It provides pure protection only. The owner buys a certain amount of coverage and pays an annual premium based on his age. As the name suggests, this policy covers the owner of the policy for a certain term or period of time, such as five or 10 years, or through age 65. At the end of the term, coverage stops and the policy has no cash value built up in it. It's similar to auto insurance, the owner buys auto insurance protection for a certain period of time and pays a premium for that protection. The owner of a life insurance policy can continue his protection for another term—but because he is older, his premium will be increased for each new term.

Q — What is straight life insurance? How does it differ from term insurance?

A — Straight life insurance is a type of insurance which provides a certain amount of coverage throughout life. It combines a decrease in amount of protection with an increasing amount of savings within the policy.

The premium on straight life insurance doesn't change. The policyholder is building up savings as well as buying protection. The premium for a given amount of straight life insurance at a given age is higher than the premium for term insurance.

Q — What is the relationship between the cash surrender value and the face value of a policy?

A — The face value is the amount payable at the death of the insured. It includes both the protection and the savings (cash surrender) value of the policy. The cash value is the amount of savings that have built up within the policy. This amount increases during the time the policy is in force. If a policy owner pays premiums through age 99 on most policies, the cash value and the face value would be the same at that time. If ones takes out a $10,000 straight life policy at age 25 and quits payment on it at age 65, the cash value would be about six or $7,000.

Q — What is limited payment life insurance? Does it have any special advantages?

A — A limited payment policy is similar to the straight life policy, except the policyholder pays the total premiums on the policy in a limited number of years, usually 20 or 30, or by age 65. After that, the policy remains in force for the rest of the insured's life unless he decides to withdraw the cash value. If he withdraws the cash value the coverage stops.

The premium on limited payment life insurance at a given age is higher than for a straight life policy because you pay all the premiums into the policy in a given number of years. This means the policy holder is acutally building up savings (cash value) within the policy at a considerably faster rate than would be true with the straight life insurance policy.

Q — What is an endowment policy? What is its purpose?

A — Endowment insurance is a type of insurance which places primary emphasis on savings. It does have a protection element, too. The primary purpose of an endowment policy is to build up a certain fund of money in a fixed period of years. The endowment life insurance policy is paid for in a limited number of years, usually 20 or 30 years from the time the policy is taken out, or by age 65, as is true of the limited payment policy. The endowment policy at the end of 20 or 30 years builds up the cash savings feature of a policy to an amount equal to the face value. Since you have your total cash available at this time, the protection element has been reduced to zero, and the coverage ends. The policy, and a cash fund equal to the face value of the policy is available to you.

If the insured dies while the policy is in force, the face value is paid. And cash and loan values are, of course, available during the policy period.

Because of the emphasis on building up savings in this type of policy, premiums are much higher than for the other types.

"Term insurance is pure insurance," summarized Dr. Metzen. "If you want to do some saving along with buying protection through insurance rather than saving through another medium, you may want to consider the other types of policies."

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a 17 year-old girl who hopes you will continue to print letters about alcoholism and the harm it does. This is what happened at our house last week.

When I got home from school Mom was in bed, which was not unusual. At dinner time she didn't get up and I figured she was sleeping off a hangover so I started to fix supper for Dad and us kids. Dad came home at six and went in to check Mom. He came out of the bedroom white as a ghost. "Mom's dead" he said and went to the phone and called the police. When he returned to the bedroom he yelled, "She moved — call the police and tell them not to come. Call the doctor instead."

Well, the police came anyway, and so did the doctor and so did the newspapers, and it made the front page and everybody is talking about it. My sister and I can't hold up our heads at school and my father is ready to change jobs because everybody at the garage where he works is making jokes. People are going to talk about this forever and there's nothing we can do about it. Please print my letter as another example of how alcoholism hurts the whole family. — S-4

DEAR S-4: Here's your letter and the address of an organization that can help YOU. Write to Alateen, P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, New York 10010. Kids who live with alcoholism need strength, courage and information. This group offers all three — in abundance.

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday we had dinner at my cousin's house. She had her Christmas cards still pinned to the dining room draperies. I asked her if she planned to carry the Christmas spirit into Easter. "Oh," she sighed, "I can't throw the cards out until I record the names of the senders."

When I asked what that was all about, she explained that the record is for next year. Her reply was, "We send cards only to people who have sent cards to us the previous year." I then asked if she ever sent a card to a person just because she wanted to wish him well. She replied, "Are you kidding? The whole thing is a pain in the ankle. We send cards because we HAVE to — and so does everyone else."

This is such a hardboiled approach it made me wonder how much of the world operates this way. What do you think? — V-2

Dear V-2: I think there are an awful lot of people whose motivation for Christmas giving is the same as your cousin's. Too much of Christmas has become a commercial racket. How much better if people would treat one another more kindly all through the year.

---

Dear Ann Landers: When I married my husband four years ago (my first, his second) I was prepared for the problems that come with stepchildren. I thought I could handle anything. Now I'm not so sure.

My husband's first wife has the boys (ages from 8 to 15) but every weekend they come to our place. They are spoiled, babyish and undisciplined. I love children but not when they behave like wild animals.

Lately my husband has been talking about taking the boys on a trip next summer. I am dreading it. Is there something wrong with me? — A.Z.

Dear A.Z.: Stepchildren have busted up more second marriages than anything I know of. ALL children respond to love and kindness. If you want your marriage to work, dig in your heels and learn to get along with those children. Easy? Of course not. It takes maturity, sanity patience and perseverance, but it must be done or everything else might come undone.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex And How To Tell The Difference." Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

Thirty-one Girl Scout leaders and cookie chairmen met with Neighborhood Chairman Mrs. Orrin C. Smith recently at the Episcopal Church Parish House.

The Junior Sing-Along was discussed and thank-you notes will be sent to Gerald Cecil for use of the loudspeaker system and to Charles Ramseyer for use of the Agriculture Building.

Mrs. James Labahn announced plans for a Girl Scout birthday party Sat., March 16 from 1-3 p.m. at Convention Hall. Girls will dress in play clothes and will play games complete with prizes and enter a "Crazy Hat" contest. Girls must originate their own hat from a basic felt hat. Ice cream and cake will be served just before dismissing.

On March 9, from 12-4 p.m., Senior-Cadette Scouts will celebrate Girl Scout week with a dinner, speaker and fashion show at Wesley Methodist Church basement.

Mrs. Smith announced the Leader-Appreciation luncheon at Flat Creek Inn March 27. Reservations are necessary and the price is $1.75. The guest speaker will be Mayor Ralph Walker. After the luncheon and speech, there will be a regular neighborhood business meeting to give out Day Camp registrations and information on Brownie Day Camp and Junior Explorer Day.

The Day Camp Task Force Chairman, Mrs. Wanda Whittaker, reported to the group that Day Camp will be 4 days, June 17-21 and 4 days, June 24-28. The girls will go the full 8 days and the camp fee will be $3.50 or $5.00 if transportation is needed. Mrs. Jack Shelledy will be business manager again, but a camp director and assistant director have not been found.

Maurine Lane announced that Cadette troops 295 and 311 will hold the Brownie Flyabout at Camp Sakajawea on April 27 with May 11 as an alternate date. She asked Brownie leaders to send a list of names of those girls who will attend the Fly-about to Mrs. Harold Lane by April 12. Cadette Troops 396 and 333 will hold the Junior Explorer Day on the same date and alternate date. However, the location has not been selected.

All troops should plan to attend church services on Girl Scout Sunday March 10.

Following the business meeting, the nominating committee met with Mrs. Smith to select Neighborhood Service Teams for next year.

Morris Brown and John Ellison, Jr., campsite co-chairmen of Camp Sakajawea Girl Scout camp, have met with District Chairman Mrs. Orrin Smith and leaders and have laid out a 10-year plan for improving the campsite. They set building redwood picnic tables as the most immediate needs and the building of shelter houses, land-clearing and a winterized lodge for future improvements.

Funds for the building of the redwood tables will be solicited through interested persons, service clubs and businesses. Further improvements will extend over a 10-year period.

The first workday for cleaning, clearing and painting will be Saturday, April 20.

Permission to Drop Passenger Trains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Union Pacific Railroad is free to discontinue passenger trains 69 and 70 between Kansas City and Salina, Kan., as a result of an Interstate Commerce Commission decision Thursday.

Grant Given To Moniteau County Area

The Moniteau County 4-H Council said it has learned that Moniteau County is one of 18 counties in the state of Missouri receiving a $75 grant for the purpose of promoting conservation of natural resources.

The grant was made possible through the interest of the Federal Cartridge Corporation. Thirty nine counties in the state applied for the grant through a detailed plan for conservation activities. Applications were evaluated by Kenneth Hicks, Missouri Conservation Comiission; L.E. McCormick, Extension Farm Forester; Laurel Anderson, Extension Field Crops Specialist; and Arthur Ausherman, Extension Youth Specialist.

A committee of the Moniteau Coutny 4-H Council comprised of Arthur Bleich, Mrs. E. G. Powell, Mrs. Clark Howard and Mrs. Clarence Sappington prepared the proposed plan, which was to build countywide interest in conservation of natural resources and proved incentives to 4-H and other youth groups for conservation project work.

Activities will include a conservation slogan contest open to 4-H clubs and scout groups. Blue ribbon slogans from each local contest will be entered in a countywide contest at the Moniteau County Fair in August. Prizes will be awarded in the countywide contest. A conservation speech contest, "How I Can Build a More Beautiful America," will also be held at County 4-H Achievement Day. This contest will be divided into age groups with boys and girls under 14 years in one category and boys and girls over 14 years in another. They must be 14 years old by Jan. 1, 1968. Money prizes will be given.

The big activity will be a conservation field day open to all boys and girls in the county. This field day will include lessons on gun safety, target shooting contests, tree identification contests and bait casting.

Personnel assisting with this field day will include Lt. Col. L.R. McKee, Richard Schroeder, conservation agent, additional conservation personnel and Ken Speckhart, farm forester.

Any boy or girl who is interested in participating in any of these activities may contact the University Extension Center in Moniteau County on Highway 50 West, or phone 796-2471.

Builders of Character

Instead of trying to tear this country apart, they're doing their darndest to help build it up. They are finding ways to serve their community. They are making friends in other countries, helping to improve our national image abroad. They are earnestly trying to develop their best potential because they know their country's future depends on them.

Who are these self-dedicated persons?

The Girl Scouts of America!

This week, particularly Tuesday, March 12, they are celebrating their 56th birthday anniversary. Juliette Gordon Low organized the first troop of 12 girls in Savannah, Georgia in 1912.

True to its traditions of more than half a century, the Girl Scouts have a new look. The organization is involved in helping girls understand and deal with problems of the underprivileged about which adults of today are becoming more concerned.

There is a wide range of opportunities in Scouting for all girls between the ages of 7 and 17 regardless of race, color or creed. The horizons have never been broader for these young people. There is great significance in this for the girls of today to be concerned about the values of tomorrow if the nation is to be guided along the proper paths of democracy.

But with all that the Girl Scout movement has to offer growing youngsters, one of the principal benefits girls are able to obtain from their program is how to get along on an equal basis with others in their age groups. All of the girls are bound together by a common bond of interest in clean living and healthful fun through scoutcraft.

Scouting gives girls a sense of belonging which tends to promote individual group achievement.

The Girl Scouts of Sedalia and throughout America are entitled to a well-deserved tribute for their past performances and well wishes for their future achievements in making better citizens of themselves.

GET THE MESSAGE?

Hot-Line To Those At Home

In this country, March is Red Cross Month, the period during which we salute and support the organization which contributes so much to the nation's welfare. But in Vietnam, as General William C. Westmoreland said recently, "every month is Red Cross month."

"Serving our men on the battlefields here in Vietnam," he added, "the American Red Cross is a hot-line to the folks back home, an oasis in the heat of battle, and a comfort during hospitalization. Dedicated field directors work 24 hours a day alongside our fighting men."

Also among the 350 Red Cross workers on Vietnam duty there are hospital social work and recreation specialists, and 110 Red Cross girls who operate a growing fleet of clubmobiles and 18 popular recreation centers where the troops can get away from the war for an hour or two.

Through our own local Red Cross chapter, we support and are part of the vast network that provides these services in Vietnam and Korea, and to the men and their families here at home and in the 28 other countries where U.S. troops are stationed. The Red Cross aided one out of every three military men and one out of every two service families last year. Its accomplishments in helping disaster victims, providing blood for the ill and injured, and training millions in safety and good health practices were equally impressive.

This year the Red Cross faces a critical financial situation due to the increasing demands for aid to armed forces members and the continuing drain made by costly disaster relief operations. To serve the American people in 1968-69, the organization must raise $121,624,000, its largest fund goal since World War II. During March, ARC chapters which have not yet reached their goals will be campaigning for funds. These goals must be achieved.

Aside from its other works of mercy, as General Westmoreland says, there is no better way we can aid our men on the battlefields than by supporting the Red Cross. It urgently needs a helping hand. Let's give it!

Evers Scorns Role of Extremist

—VIETNAM LAND REFORM—

Drew Pearson has frequently reported that one problem in South Vietnam was failure of the government to carry out land reform. As late as Jan. 18, he reported that the land reform laws were not being enforced.

On March 4, the House Operations Committee published a lengthy report detailing exactly this same failure as one cause for instability in South Vietnam.

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Most interesting election in the United States takes place in Jackson, Miss., next week, when Charles Evers, brother of the slain Medgar Evers, faces a run-off for the vacant congressional seat of John Bell Williams, now governor.

When his brother Medgar was shot from ambush while parking his car, Charles Evers could have become an extremist. He could have joined the black power advocates of violence. Events following his brother's murder might have justified such reaction.

In the first place, the man charged with the murder of his brother, Byron De la Beckwith, was twice tried, and twice escaped punishment because of a hung jury. After that, Beckwith sold a piece of property in Greenwood, Miss., to the federal government for a post office site for $25,630, which made it look as if Washington was rewarding Beckwith — though this was certainly not the case.

Later, Beckwith ran for Lieutenant Governor of Mississippi in the Democratic primary and rolled up a sizable vote.

Charles Evers, however, did not become bitter. He had taken over his brother's job as Mississippi NAACP director, and he kept plugging away at the democratic system of solving race problems — by getting the right to vote.

"We don't need to picket restaurants any more or stage sit-ins," he said. "I tell my people not to go limp when you're arrested. Walk out like a man with the police and call a lawyer. The law's on our side now — when we obey it. And we're going to obey it.

"We've now got 200,000 Negroes registered and ready to vote," said Evers, who had traveled up and down the state of Mississippi for two years to register them. "They can't be ignored. A lot of white people in Mississippi have come around to the idea that they've got to give the Negro a real chance to become a first class citizen, not because he's a Negro but because he's an American."

"What do you think of the black power movement?" I asked.

"They're crazy," he replied. "We got tremendous help from white people in pushing ahead down here, and the Negro in America has got to go forward in partnership with white men."

Despite continuing threats, the death of his brother and the long struggle upward, Charles Evers hasn't lost his sense of humor. He was sitting in the Pump Room of the Hotel Ambassador East in Chicago during a trip north to raise Christmas turkey money for Mississippians.

The Pump Room is one of the swankiest eating places in the Midwest. Negro waiters wear African turbans. The cheapest entree is priced at around five dollars. The menu is in French. Evers studied it carefully, searching for pork and greens.

"One of the penalties of integration," he sighed, "is eating white man's food."

—Lackadaisical McCarthy—

Some people friendly to Sen. Eugene McCarthy, D-Minn., and his peace principles have asked why his campaign doesn't get off the ground; why does it drag in such a lackluster manner?

The answer is illustrated by an incident which took place in the Senate last week when the senator from Minnesota ambled from his office to the Senate floor too late to vote on the all-important cloture bill to break the Southern filibuster against civil rights.

The vote was the most important of the year 1968. A presidential commission had just warned that this nation might become another South Africa if we did not do something about open housing. The Senate had been debating the Civil Rights bill for almost two months. McCarthy's colleague, Sen. Walter Mondale of Minnesota, was manager of the bill and had done an excellent job. He desperately needed votes.

Yet the other senator from Minnesota, who has long espoused civil rights, didn't bother to get to the Senate on time to vote.

Note — There was another vote last December when the hero of the liberals joined the conservatives in trying to bury a drug amendment which would have saved the taxpayers $100 million and especially affected the price of drugs to older people. Behind the closed doors of the Senate Finance Committee McCarthy voted against requiring the government to purchase drugs by their generic names at about one-tenth the trademark name cost. McCarthy's former assistant, Larry Merthan, is now a lobbyist for drug manufacturer Charles Pfizer.

Letter to Editor

MRS. WILLIAM C. FINNIE (Philadelphia Teacher) — After 2½ hours ride on a bus to Harrisburg we stood with 20,000 others for an hour, waiting for the speeches to be made at 1 p.m. We heard the Republican and Democrat leaders of both houses and the President of the Pennsylvania State Education Association, and then Governor Shaefer. In essence the Democrats said teachers should get the $6,000 base salary now and the state subsidy to needy districts. The Republicans said we would get it by 1971 (the end of Shaefer's term). So the Demos were cheered and the Republicans were booed — yes booed!

I was really upset — these people, supposedly professional people, were booing and cat-calling in the middle of Gov. Shaefer's speech. Fifty percent of them stood around chomping gum and behaving just like kids.

Anyway — I was glad I went to hear the speeches — but I am a little ashamed of the "professionals" I found myself associated with. They had all received a letter from PSEA asking that everyone remember that "Dignity" was to be maintained. (Hah! — should teachers be reminded like that!)

After all, someone had to elect Shaefer, right? And I don't think all the booers could have been Democrats. So enough about demonstration stuff.

Looking Backward

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

R. A. Heerman, 1104 South Sneed Avenue, bookkeeper at the Third National Bank, has resigned to accept a position as teller at the National Bank in North Kansas City.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Barbers Union, Local No. 259 celebrated their 27th birthday anniversary February 27 with entertainment, luncheon and dance in American Legion Hall. The Missouri Pacific quartet sang, Miss Gertrude Cartwright gave a reading and sang a solo and two Cecil girls, daughters of W. W. Cecil sang. T.O. Sisson, formerly a barber, gave a history account of the organization. Fred Overfelt, president, presided. The program was arranged by James Settles, Ernest Reynolds and Everett E. Smith.

NINETY YEARS AGO

The many friends of Mr. S. L. Highleyman and lady organized and made a regular raid on the Highleyman mansion on the northwest corner of Broadway and Moniteau. When the surprise was over an elegant collection of food was served and duly discussed. Then the assembly repaired to the parlors and engaged in a general social reunion. It was the first surprise party of the season, but this one was such a success that others will undoubtedly follow.

Sets Good Example

Senator Thruston Morton chose not to be involved in the approaching Republican melee in November. After a long and useful Congressional career, he chooses not to run for re-election. The distinguished Senator, who has served his party, his state of Kentucky and the nation for many years, says he is "track sore." His reasons are "entirely personal." His brother Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton (R., Md.) thinks Thruston's plan to retire is a "great idea." "There are things he wants to do which are possible at 60 but wouldn't be at 66," the Maryland representative said.

Other members of Congress could follow the Kentucky senator and retire before they reach senility. There are doddering old men rambling around the historic hill who should give up and go home. Some of them are ill and spend a great deal of time at Walter Reed or Navy Medical. Others do not remember what day it is, let alone the issues they are expected to debate.

There is a retirement age in business and in other government jobs. Why not one in Congress? Better still, why don't some of the octogenarians and others who have served a long time, retire gracefully while they are still wearing a halo and give the bright young members a chance.

DAVID POLING

Dr. Daniel A. Poling--- World Was His Parish

By DAVID POLING

A month ago, Daniel Poling died in Philadelphia. To practically the last moment of his life, he was actively enjoying the events and people around him. A few days earlier, he had spoken to the Four Chaplains Dinner in Philadelphia. His doctor had warned him that he was a walking case of pneumonia, that he needed rest and a more quiet pace. Not Uncle Dan. He had things to do and he went to the hospital with a briefcase full and a busy telephone at his bedside.

It does not surprise his family in the least that he died away from home. I often thought he would go down in an airplane—he flew more than two million miles—averaging 60,000 miles these last several years. His concerns were worldwide, his friends on every continent. So it was right that he should leave this world away from home. And Philadelphia had always been the City of Brotherly Love for him.

People still find it hard to believe that he was 83. In the last six months alone his schedule was tailored to a man of 50, not 83. In July he had major surgery. August was get-well-month and then 14 days to the Far East with his 20th, or was it 30th, visit with Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-shek. In December he buried his sister in Oregon, in January married off a granddaughter in Pennsylvania and in between took a 10-day cruise in the Caribbean (with secretary, so he could work on his 26th book). And all along the way were board meetings, preaching dates, university appearances and time for a special lunch with a grandson or an evening with a daughter. It was just a great life! Full, turbulent and outward bound.

Daniel A. Poling was known through so many vivid associations. Head of the Christian Endeavor, in America and around the globe. Editor of the Christian Herald for almost 49 years. Pastor, preacher, author, part-time politician (he ran for governor of Ohio and mayor of Philadelphia). Army chaplain in two wars. Newspaper columnist, war correspondent. A sponsor of an amazing number of Christian organizations that reached and assisted thousands of children, families and servicemen. The world was indeed his parish.

He knew every president since McKinley. He was close to Herbert Hoover, served Roosevelt and Truman on presidential commissions and felt that Lyndon Johnson was doing a pretty good job under impossible choices and would probably have voted all the way for Richard Nixon!

His range of interests were as wide as America and Dan Poling defied labels, cliques, or party definitions. When everyone was down on Bishop Pike, he remembered the brilliant pastorate that the California bishop had at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

When people in Oregon were saying that Mark Hatfield was an incurable dove, hawk Poling said that Hatfield was probably the most outstanding statesman Oregon had produced in this century and deserved a seat in the Senate.

When the Justice Department put Jimmy Hoffa in handcuffs, he agreed with William Loeb of New Hampshire that the dramatics had been overplayed for the sake of some public careers.

He was blessed with lifelong friends: J. C. Penney, nearing 90; Kenneth Latourette of Yale and Oregon; Walter Judd from early China days; Sen. Frank Carlson from Kansas and the late Cardinal Spellman. To him it did not seem strange that Spellman should become one of his close associates in later years; they were both working out of New York; they were interested in the same social and political philosophy and they each pursued the Kingdom of God as it was revealed to him. And when that happens, you're always outward bound.

Opening lead—♦ Q

Dorothy Hayden's book entitled "Bid Better, Play Better" has just appeared in a paper-back edition. Like all bridge books, we can't endorse everything in it, but we can state that there is a great deal of good bridge common sense in it.

Today's hand, taken from it, shows how to bid a grand slam by locating specific cards in partner's hand by cue bids.

Some players wouldn't open the South hand with a forcing bid. The Jacobys aren't included in that group. True, you can set up a North hand that won't let South make game somewhere, but bridge players should not wait for absolute certainties.

Once South does open with two spades, North is interested in a slam but should not make any really aggressive move. Instead he should raise to three spades to show strength and spade support.

At this point South assumes that there will be no losers in trumps and wants to locate two key cards—the ace of diamonds and the king of clubs. Blackwood will let him find out how many aces and kings North holds, but he doesn't care about how many. He needs to know about those two special cards.

He bids four clubs and North should go to four diamonds. This bid clearly shows the ace. North has already set spades as the suit. South follows with four hearts to show first round heart control. It makes no difference to North whether South is showing the ace or a void. North should bid five clubs. Once more, North isn't trying to get into clubs. He is showing second round control.

This is enough for South. He goes to the grand slam and spreads his hand as soon as East follows to the first trick.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

The World Almanac notes that the amount (principal and interest) still owed to the United States from loans made to 17 friendly nations during World War I was over $21 billion as of June, 1967. The amount of the original debt was $12 billion. In 1953, the United States agreed that no further payments need be made until final settlement of German World War I reparations, a settlement precluded as long as Germany is divided.

The Wind

The sun is for warmth
This I know,
To give us light,
To make things grow;
The rain is for
The self same reason,
It falls from clouds
In growing season;
The snow in winter
Is moisture, too,
And has a special
Job to do;
And old man wind
Has a job, no doubt,
But what I've Never figured out,
It blows off hats,
It musses hair,
It puts a real chill
In the air;
It dries out ground
And when it's dry
Whirls the top soil
Toward the sky;
It breaks down plants,
The leaves it blows,
At any time of Year it shows
What it can do
And yet to me
What good it does
I cannot see;
It is a vandal,
It destroys,
It is a tease
And it annoys,
A breeze now
Has its place it's true
But what's a wind
Supposed to do?
Each time it blows
I wonder why,
Perhaps it's just
To make kites fly;
And if it isn't
A real gale,
Maybe it is
To help boats sail.
Just what it's job is
I don't know,
To me it's only
A big blow
That's giving
Everyone a bout,
It's one thing
I could do without.

Some Bad, Some Good

By CYRENE DEAR

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Rep. William J. Randall, of the 4th Congressional District of Missouri, recently expressed his disappointment of the President's Advisory Commission on Civil Disorder report. "There is not a single word of admonition of responsibility for the Negro to do something for himself in the way of personal merit," he said. "The report sounds like the Black Power leaders themselves, and it may lead to more trouble instead of preventing it if we don't attempt to put the recommended costly program into effect," he added. He thought it was unfair for the Commission to put all the blame of the riots on the white citizens of this country.

Mr. Randall says it is a fiscal impossibility for the country to carry out all the recommendations of the Commission's report. He says the people in his district are not going to vote for a tax increase to rebuild the ghettoes.

He disapproved of some of the language in the report, especially the words which said we were headed for a "divided America" because of frustrations and tensions. "Everybody has them," he said, "even white people, but we cannot give vent to them. We must abide by law and order and not start throwing bricks just because we have grievances."

In commenting on the conclusion of the report that the 1967 riots were not caused by various conspiracies, he said, "Rapp Brown went from Newark to Philadelphia and to Cambridge, Maryland, and if that wasn't conspiracy, I don't know what you call it." The report backtracks on this issue when it says that "organizations may have helped to create a conspiracy."

Rose(?) by Any Other Name

Garbage collectors asked the Milwaukee city council for a more dignified name. A newly adopted ordinance now identifies them as "combustible truck loaders."

It's an apt title. New York and Memphis, both of which recently weathered sanitation workers' strikes, are well-aware of just how combustible such truck loaders can be.

Bold Soviet Comic Popular

By MICHAEL JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) — The meeting hall was stuffy, and 2,999 spectators were snoring.

"There's a spy in this hall. Find him," the Soviet police chief ordered his men.

An alert agent quickly spotted the only spectator who was awake, listening to the dull speech now in its third hour. The agent seized the man and dragged him to headquarters.

"How did you know?" cried the captured spy, who thought he had masqueraded himself as a loyal Communist.

"Simple," the agent said. "Lenin teaches us that our enemy never sleeps. You were the only one awake."

This is the self-critical type of joke that the Russians are laughing at these days—and all except the most dogmatic Communists find such anecdotes hilarious.

It is typical of the new brand of Soviet humor that reveals a talent for self-ridicule and an increasing willingness to make use of it openly.

This tough style of humor thrives in Russia's seemingly bland society, where the government is perhaps the most humorless in the world. Laughter is rare at most official functions and humor is hard to find in the press. In fact Russians consider it a major event when the head of the government, Alexei N. Kosygin, smiles in public.

The man who gets away with the most slashing, thumping satirical criticism is rapid-fire Soviet comedian Arkady Raikin.

It appears that most Russians love him and probably see him as a vicarious outlet for things they would like to say. But others hate him for his ruthless satire on contemporary Soviet life.

Raikin, 56 and Jewish is the Soviet Union's most popular stand-up comic. His style mixes parts of Mort Sahl, Jerry Lewis and Charley Weaver.

A slick, professional performer, he uses everything from plastic noses and funny hats to falsetto voices and wigs to get a laugh.

He is at his best when ridiculing the petty official who stops so much of the work the Soviet Union is trying to accomplish.

The routine would flop in any well-organized, industralized country. In the Soviet Union it has real meaning.

There also exists a dull, blunt, officially inspired type of humor that wouldn't pass for wit in any sophisticated country. This is the published "satire" in newspapers and magazines.

The Magazine Krokodil (Crocodile), which Russians say has deteriorated in the past 10 years, now publishes cartoons that most children's magazines in the West would reject.

A typical example: One old man to another old man: "I haven't seen you in 100 years."

With the Soviet obsession for planning, an attempt was made last year to schedule a Laughter Day. There was a publicity buildup in the press, and the Russian apparently was ready for it when it arrived April 1.

Two KC Teams Reach Finals

Bulletin

The Kansas City Raiders in the third quarter of the Championship game of the Lions Club Tournament were leading the Yagers Raiders of Kansas City by a score of 76 to 58 with two minutes and 31 seconds left in the quarter.

By D. Kelly Scruton

The third place game of the 18th Annual Sedalia Lions Basketball Invitational Tournament went to a fighting Rolla team who defeated the Marshall Nightwines Body Shop by a score of 100 to 82. The Championship game got underway at 9:45 p.m.

An exceptionally good crowd was in attendance, many arriving for the championship game. It was better than anticipated in accordance with attendance at the games of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. W. C. "Wink" Ream and John Mais, co-chairmen of the tournament, expressed gratitude for the final night attendance.

The Rolla aggregation took over the lead in the first quarter by two points and moved a little more ahead in each succeeding period. It was 19-17 in the first and 27-18 in the second to give Rolla a lead over Nightwines of 46 to 35 at the halftime mark. In the third quarter Rolla scored 25 to 23 and in the final stanza Rolla scored 29 to 24 for the 100 to 82 win.

Saladin, a Rolla school teacher, was still the big gun for Rolla when he tallied nine baskets and five free throws for 23 points. Top scorer of the game was Kugel of the Nightwines with a 13-3 for 29 points.

Individual scoring for Rolla: Saladin 9-5-23; Burton 3-0-9; Borgmeyer 9-3-21; Carlson 4-0-8; Smith 6-4-16; Cloud 10-4-24. Total 42-16-100. For Marshall: Nightwines: D. Malter 8-1-17; Kugel 13-3-29; Smith 7-0-14; Yarborough 7-0-14; Henke 3-0-9; and O'Neal 1-0-2. Total 39-4-82.

The championship game being played late brought together two teams from Kansas City who had played each other twice and split the two games. Both teams were boasting over this contest for the championship being the "rubber game" for them this season.

Friday night the semi-final games in the tournament proved to be thrillers for the fans.

Yagers vs Nightwines

The opening game between the Yagers Raiders of Kansas City, and the Marshall Nightwines Body Shop belong to the Nightwines until one minute and 57 seconds before the end. At that point the Riders put on a push which brought them up and the necessary edge to win the game 95-50. In the nightcap game the spread average from four to 10 points with the K. C. Raiders holding the lead, to finish with a 108-102 win.

It was a heart-breaker for the Nightwines as they began to falter in the final half of the contest and see their lead up through the third period dwindle away and lose 108 to 102.

The Body Shop aggregation eked out a one-point edge in the first quarter 21-10 and made the halftime lead separation by 10 points as they scored 34-25 in the second period. In the third period the Riders slashed off six points from the lead scoring 21 to 15, and in the final stanza took charge with one minute and 51 seconds left.

In those final ticks of the clock Yagers put on the pressure and scored 29 points for the stanza to 20 to grab the big end of the 95-90 score.

Individual scoring: Nightwines, T. Malter 6-10-22; D. Malter 8-5-21; Kugel 6-7-19; Smith 5-2-12; Yarborough 2-0-4; and Henke 4-4-12. Total 31-28-90. For Yagers Raiders, Matuzak 3-1-7; Hay 7-2-16; Woodworth 8-0-16; Holloway 2-8-12; Shelton 9-5-23; Becker 2-2-6; Parker 4-7-15. Total 35-25-95.

K.C. Raiders vs Rolla

The Kansas City Raiders were able to protect the slim lead in their game with the Rolla quintet who in the final minutes of play practically handed the game to the Kansas Citians.

In the final three minutes of the game, Rolla's bad passes went into the hands of the Raiders who made good on the breaks. The difference in the score was noted in the number of hits made by the Raiders, especially when Rolla became too over anxious and fouled their opponents. Free-throws were more than the difference in the win as the Raiders collected 24 against the Rolla 10.

Opening the game the Kansas Citians took a five-point lead of 32-27, dropped three of the lead points in the second period as Rolla scored 26-23, as the Raiders maintained an intermission lead of 55-53. In the third period the Raiders staged another 32 point scoring spree against 24, and in the final stanza the Raiders were not hot on the backboards from the field and scored on free throws totalling that quarter's scoring to 21, eight of the free throws in the period against the Rolla 25.

Yeager of the Raiders was high pointer with 8-11-27 followed by Tylicki 10-2-22; Brockman 9-2-20; Wolfe 0-1-1; Finfrock 4-0-8; Hartwig 3-0-6; Bailey 4-5-13; and Brown 4-3-11 for a total 42-24-108. For Rolla, Saladin led the scoring with 19-6-44; Smith 11-1-23; Burton 3-0-6; Borgmeyer 4-19; Head 0-1-1; Phelps 1-0-2; Andrews 4-1-9; Cloud 4-0-8; While Carlson went out on five fouls and no scoring. Total 46-10-102.

As a result of these two games the tournament went into a Raiders vs Raiders contest, for the championship

Sport Scraps

By D. Kelly Scruton

March 1 was a big day for Virgil Herrick, who didn't mention it around the Lions Club members until during the basketball tournament at Smith-Cotton and by chance he dropped the information to me. As everyone, or nearly everyone knows, Virgil always hits for Bennett Springs on opening day of trout season, returns home sometimes happy and other times, well not exactly empty-handed, but not the Big One.

Virgil told us he was the envy of a lot of nearby fisherman, being one of more than 1,600 who were after that big one and their limit. Incidentally, catching the Big One didn't stop Herrick as he went on to get his limit.

It was caught on a two-pound leader with a jig. What made Virgil tappier was the fact he could brag about Bill Herrick, his son, who had tied the jig.

Making it doubly a big day, it was Virgil's 52nd birthday—which figure he gave me— but he hesitated at first, because he didn't come out and say it. But other members of the family may have been under the impression he was around "39" which couldn't very well figure with Bill in college down in Springfield.

Seems Virgil didn't get a local picture taken of the trout, but he offered to take it out of the deep freeze for a "snap." Some of his friends are wondering if he is ever going to eat it or keep it chilled so he can take a look at one of the best things that happened to him on his 52nd birthday which brought him Fisherman's honors at Bennett Springs for the first time.

The 18th Lions Invitational Basketball Tournament is over, and many basketball fans of the area who didn't attend missed some excellent games. The tournament opened with a good attendance but as it rolled along it began falling under previous years. Nobody can understand what was caused the decline, but it looks as if it is headed the route of the Missouri Non-Pro baseball tournaments, which have been taken away from Sedalia for lack of support.

Wally MCown, who has been announcing at these Lions tournaments for years, made this remark Friday, "I have never seen a better scheduled bracket in these Lions tournaments than this one. Of course in a 16-team bracket most any thing can be expected, but a on a whole it is a great tournament."

Only two incidents marred the tournament, that was when the Empire Bank of Springfield checked out in the afternoon. They were to play that night, but a substitution of the Sedalia Wolverines saved a game, inspite of the 102-46 loss to Marshall Nightwines. The other was when Concordia failed to make an appearance for its game with the Columbia Heidelberg-Hamm's, who won it on a forfeit.

But on the overall five nights, those who attended got their money's worth, I would say. The Lions won't lose anything financially on the tournament as their concession work and a program will see there isn't a loss. But had much been made on the financial end, it would have gone toward the Clubs activities for the blind and childrens sponsoring activities.

It wasn't exactly charity on the part of basketball fans because they would have gotten their money's worth in entertainment on the hardwood. But it would have helped the Lions and rewarded those who spent so much time in working on on the tournament with personal satisfaction.

Down in Tampa, Florida, last month where the State Fair season usually opens the circuit for the rest of the country, it was noted our good friend Al Sweeney, president of National Speedways of Florida, Inc., received honors.

He was recognized by the Greater Tampa Chamber of Commerce for his outstanding contribution to the sport of racing—auto racing that is. During one of the racing events, Sweeney was given the great surprise when everything was halted long enough for him to be honored. He was presented a special award from the Chamber.

For years he has conducted auto racing at Tampa with each year the programs getting better and better in competition. He is one who not only takes great interest in the racing program, but he is also a great promoter for that fair.

We might add that Al Sweeney, as a promoter of the racing program in Missouri at the Missouri State Fair, has done as much as any individual to boost Missouri's fair here in Sedalia. You name one and I'll match boost for boost as far as Al is concerned.

Homecoming Queen

Miss Debbie Harmon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Harmon, formerly of Sedalia, was recently crowned Basketball Homecoming Queen at Truman High School in Independence, during the halftime ceremonies of the Raytown South-Truman game. Truman was victorious over Raytown and as a result Truman became co-champions of the Suburban Eight Conference.

Miss Harmon is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Decker, 709 West Tenth.

Women attending University of Missouri, Kansas City number 3,382 this year, compared with 2,387 three years ago.

Nancy Greene Is Defeated By Schoolgirl

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Marilyn Cochran, an excited schoolgirl from Richmond, Vt., beat out the great Nancy Greene of Canada Saturday in the giant slalom as youngsters continued to dominate the women's events of the 1968 National Alpine Ski Championships.

Another Vermonter—Rich Chaffee of Rutland—sprang a lesser surprise in taking the men's division of the race. Scott Henderson of Banff, Alberta, who won the men's downhill championship Friday, was second and Rod Hebron of Vancouver, B.C., third. Chaffee was timed in 2:20.78, less than three-tenths of a second faster than Henderson.

The 18-year-old Miss Cochran, who said her trip through the 67 gates of the Crystal Mountain run felt slow and terrible, covered the 1½ miles in 2:16.30. She was the 24th starter in a field of 34, and the spectators were conceding the title to Miss Greene before Marilyn made her run.

Nancy, who won an Olympic gold medal for Canada in the giant slalom, was timed at 2:16.37. Another young U.S. star, 16-year-old Judy Nagel of Enumclaw, Wash., was third.

The women found the route extremely tricky and 19 either fell or were disqualified for missing gates. Cathy Nagel, Judy's older sister and star of the World University Games, was one who tumbled after being two seconds faster than any other skier midway in the run.

First vessel to use radar was the USS New York, in 1938.

Biggest Freeze

Charlotte, N.C. — Two frustrated Duke players, Steve Vandenberg (52) and Dave Golden (20) watched time stand still here Friday night as North Carolina State players Eddie Biedenbach (34) and Dick Braucher (10) take part in the biggest freeze in Atlantic Coast Conference history during the semi-final round of the ACC Tournament. Final score of the contest, which was the lowest scoring game in ACC history, was 12-10 with NCS scoring an upset victory in one overtime. (UPI)

Needs Third Hand

Jayhawks Take Season Finale From I-State

By JIM VAN VALKENBURG.
Associated Press Sports Writer

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP)—The Kansas Jayhawks, headed for the National Invitation Tournament, took quick command with a ball-stealing defense led by Jojo White and whipped Iowa State 96 to 58 Saturday, retaining a chance for a share of the Big Eight basketball crown.

Kansas finished 10-4 in league play and is 19-7 for the season. Kansas State, 10-3, was in position to clinch an undisputed crown with a Saturday night home court victory over Oklahoma State.

Iowa State finished in a three-way third place tie at 8-6.

A crowd of 13,000 and a national television audience watched Kansas rip the Cyclones 12-1 in a 3½ minute span for a 14-4 lead. From there, the Jayhawks spurted to a 42-14 bulge with 6:40 left in the half. Kansas hit 63 per cent of its field shots in the first half 60 per cent for the game.

Quick-firing Rodger Bohnenstiehl, the only Kansas senior, drilled 21 points and missed only one of his 11 field shots. Iowa State's 6-foot-9 Don Smith, the Big Eight's all-time No. 3 scorer and No. 2 rebounder, led his club with 30 points and 15 rebounds.

Smith finished the season with 604 points. He and Wilt Chamberlain of Kansas in 1957-58 are the only players in Big Eight history to score more than 600 two years in a row.

The Brooklyn, N. Y., senior, voted Big Eight player of the year, finished his career with 1,672 points and 1,025 rebounds.

Bill Bridges of Kansas, 1959-61 is the only other Big Eight player to top 1,000 in both points and rebounds.

It was Iowa State's highest league finish since 1963.

Kansas Coach Ted Owens said "I just hope this provides a good springboard for the NIT."

The first Kansas foe March 15 in New York will be Temple 19-8. Temple assistant Don Casqey scouted the Jayhawks.

"We can't scout Temple because they have finished the season" Owens said. "Casey, will you send us a film."

"No, Idon't want you to be overconfident," Casey replied.

Owens said his club was much improved the past week, which included victories of 70-58 at Oklahoma State and 85-80 at Oklahoma. He said "It's a matter of pride."

Wichita Nurses Narrow Lead To Defeat Tulsa

Tulsa, Okla. (AP) — Wichita State University nursed a narrow lead for the final three minutes Saturday to defeat Tulsa 85-81 in a Missouri Valley basketball game.

The game was the final for Coach Joe Swank, who leaves Tulsa Monday to become head basketball coach at Centenary in Shreveport, La. The loss gave Swank an 11-12 for this season and 102-103 as head coach at Tulsa the past eight years.

Wichita ended the season with a conference record of seven wins and nine losses and sixth place in the standings. Tulsa's conference record was 5-11, which left the Hurricanes seventh in the conference.

Tulsa took a five-point lead, 67-62, with 12 minutes remaining, but the wheatshockers nibbled back and took a one-point lead with 3:30 left and held on the remainder of the way.

Dimaggio Back In Uniform With Oakland Athletics

BRADENTON, Fla. (AP) — Old No. 5 is back in uniform. Joe DiMaggio no longer wears the familiar Yankee pin stripes. Now it's the misty green and wedding gown white of the transplanted Oakland A's.

The once jet-black hair is liberally sprinkled with gray, but the Yankee Clipper still looks like the man who hit safely in 56 straight games in 1941, a record that may live forever. More important, he still retains the quiet dignity and class of a born champion.

Many eyebrows were lifted when Joe D. signed on with Charley Finley, the man who once hired a shepherd to guard his sheep in the Kansas City ball park and toured the league with a performing mule.

Was DiMaggio to become just another publicity exhibit: Perish the thought. DiMadge never would stand still for that.

A visitor to the A's camp will find old No. 5 very much on the job. Not many executive vice presidents suit up and mingle with the athletes on the practice field.

DiMaggio is the exception to the rule. He is a working veep. He plans to stay with the club in training camp and will make several trips during the regular season.

"It isn't so different," he said with a wry grin, fingering the green sleeves of his uniform. "Just a different color."

DiMaggio is ready and willing to try to help the young players on the A's roster. All they have to do is ask. He never was the pushy type to thrust himself on people who were not anxious to have him.

"There is no set way of hitting," he said. "One fellow bats one way, another has a different style. Honus Wagner, Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb, Rogers Hornsby all had different styles. But they followed the same fundamentals.

"The main thing is being comfortable, holding the head rigid, taking a short stride, having the bat ready to swing.

"You can't tell anybody how to hit. Nobody ever tried to teach me. If I tried to bat like Stan Musial, all curled up in that crouch, I'd be wound up in a knot.

"It's the same way with my wide stance. A lot of fellows couldn't do it my way. I didn't start out that way, either.

"Early in my career I decided I'd give up a little power to get a longer look at the ball. I still know I could hit the ball out of any park in the major leagues. What difference did it make whether it went into the 15th row or the 10th row:

"Hank Greenberg once said something I've always remembered: 'No matter how far you hit it, a home run is only four bases.'

"If I see a fellow who has a decided weakness. I'll talk to him. I wouldn't try to change a player unless he has been around a while and had not shown any improvement.

It has been 17 years since 1951 when DiMaggio decided he had enough after a .263 season. He has no regrets.

If anybody thinks DiMaggio's return to baseball is the first step toward a managerial career, forget it.

"I never have given a thought to managing," he said. "I always have been very adamant about that."

DiMaggio says his two-year deal with the A's calls for "a little bit of everything." He will be an adviser in player personnel matters and trades and might put on a uniform to work with some of the players on road trips.

North Carolina Coach Was 'Paid To Win'

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP)—"I was the coach and I'm hired to try to win."

That's the way Coach Norm Sloan of North Carolina State University's basketball team explained the slowdown his Wolfpack team put on Friday night in eliminating Duke University from the Atlantic Coast Conferenc Tournament semifinals by 12-10.

"It took no guts on my part," Sloan added. "But it took a lot of guts for those kids to stand there and do what they had to do."

During State's long dribbling acts in freezing the ball, the fans booed lustily or laughed, depending upon their bent. The defeat was a startling upset of the sixth-ranked Blue Devils.

A television broadcast of the game was interrupted several times for commercials while the dribbling continued on the court. Viewers missed no contested play.

Duke had elected to play the game State's way, refusing to press on defense, and it was a fatal decision.

"I told the boys when it was over," said Duke Coach Vic Bubas, "that I hoped I had made some good decisions for them this year. Apparently this was not one of them."

After the game, N.C. State fans among the capacity crowd of 11,500 in the Charlotte Coliseum whooped it up. Sloan did an Indian dance with former aide George Pickett. A State girl cheerleader broke into tears.

The Wolfpack had been beaten twice in the season by Duke, 82-76 and 71-61, and in these games the Blue Devil center, 6-foot-7 Mike Lewis, had been a major factor. State has no one strong enough to beat him under the boards.

Therefore, State planned to have center Bill Kretzer play outside, hoping to draw Lewis out to guard him. If Lewis had gone after Kretzer, State planned to move the ball around and look for the good shot. Duke chose to have Lewis lie back and leave Kretzer unchallenged.

State didn't plan a freeze before the game, it just developed that way, Sloan said. "If they had come out and pressured us, we'd have played with them," he added.

Charlotte newspapers called the game "The Refrigerator Bowl" and "The Great Ice Show."

Mexicans Pull Out Olympic Rule Book

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican Olympic officials have pulled out the rule book in the hassle over South Africa's readmission to the Oct.12-27 Games, but it's not too certain that the International Olympic Committee's executive board will agree with their interpretation.

The Mexicans, who will have $70 million invested in the Games by the time they end, contend South Africa's readmission had to be approved by two-thirds of the IOC membership, not by a simple majority.

A two-thirds vote is needed for a change in the rules, and that, the Mexicans say, is exactly what is in question.

Mexico's three top Olympic officials discussed the situation Friday night at a news conference.

They pointed out that rule No. 1 of the IOC states there shall be a spirit of equality among athletes in Olympic competition. Rule No. 50 says any change in rules requires a two-thirds majority for approval.

The Mexicans argue that the South Africans, by conducting Olympic trials on a segregated basis, are violating the first rule.

Therefore, in order to change rule No. 1 so that South Africa would not be violating it, the IOC would have to get a two-thirds vote. This wasn't done, they say, so rule No. 1 stands and South Africa cannot be readmitted.

The Mexican delegates to the IOC, Jose Jesus Clark Flores and Marte R. Gomez, voted against allowing South Africa back into the Games after a five-year ban.

They and Pedro Ramirez Vazquez, chairman of Mexico's organizing committee, have sent telegrams to other members of the IOC executive committee suggesting a meeting for the first weekend in April in Lausanne, Dublin, Chicago, Montreal or Mexico City.

Avery Brundage, president of the IOC, has agreed to call an executive board session but has said it might not be held until May.

So far 41 nations have said they will boycott the Games in protest against South Africa's participation.

Mexico, of course, stands to suffer heavy financial losses, but its officials say it will not cancel the Games, boycott or not.

"We are preparing to receive all the youth we invite," Ramirez said.

Five-Match Wrestling Extravaganza Is Set

A five-match professional wrestling extravaganza will be presented at Convention Hall Tuesday night when an all-star cast of heavyweights, midgets and outstanding girl grapplers go through their punishing paces.

A double main event, consisting of two tag team matches will share top billing.

Bobby Shane, a Sedalia favorite, will team with barrel-chested Ronnie Etchison to tackle hard-hitting Bob Geigel and Natureboy Rogers Kirby in one of the co-features.

In the other, Betty Niccoli, curvy Kansas City miss, will take midget Mighty Atom for a partner and together they'll take on Jean Antone and her 100-pound helper, Cowboy Lang.

In the past, heavyweights, girls and midgets have appeared in Sedalia, either separately or in groups, but rarely have all been assembled for one program.

The alliance of Geigel and Kirby promises some of the roughest action of the season. Geigel is widely known for his brawling tactics and Kirby is fast equalling his reputation.

The swift Shane, called the Wonder Boy of wrestling for his dexterity with so many holds, will battle Kirby in a separate clash.

The two girls, Niccoli and Antone, both seeking supremacy in the area women's ranks, are scheduled in another test.

The two midgets also will be in action in a second event.

Six Try To Qualify On Track

Monday six schools will be putting their best on the starting line at Jennie Jaynes Stadium to qualify for the State Indoor Track Meet scheduled for Columbia March 22.

Sacred Heart will serve as host and will have 12 entries in the 12:30 p.m. meet. Other schools entered are Cole Camp, a Class "M" entry, and Mercy Academy of Marshall, Leeton, Chilhowee, and Otterville, Class "S" competitors.

The Gremlin's of Sacred Heart will have three indoor meets under their belt and some six weeks of conditioning at their advantage, and are expected to make a fine showing even with the loss of former state qualifier Tim Hogan to a knee injury sustained in basketball action.

Of the Grem hopefuls are their 1-2 880-yard dash combination Bill Heer and Earl Gerke. In the dash and hurdles they will have two dandies in Senior Pat Crim and rookie Dave Kemp, who has been a five event man for the SH gang in indoor competition. Another Freshman, Greg Voss, will be put to the task in a fine field of milers.

The biggest battles of the day will come in the Shot, Broad Jump, and relays, 880 yds. and mile. In the Shot Put there will be at least four participants with plus 4 feet puts of the 12 lb. weight already to their credits. In the Broad Jump a half dozen will be pushing the 19 ft. mark, while the relays will be packed with three schools that were represented in state competition last year, all having last year's nucleus returning.

Field events, Shot Put, Broad Jump, Pole Valut, and High Jump will bet underway at 12:30 p.m. Monday, followed at 1:00 p.m. by the running events.

First and second place finishers for the meet will qualify for state competition, plus those competitors who meet state qualifying times or distances.

Agreeing with Persecutors Deflates Their Actions

By MURIEL LAWRENCE

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: Because of traffic on our street, our 7-year-old boy is allowed to ride his bicycle only up and down the sidewalk. But now he has become afraid to ride it at all. This is due to an older boy who calls him "chicken" for not disobeying his father and riding it in traffic. I myself have seen this boy running along the pavement beside Jeff and yelling, "You're chicken. You're the chicken I always knew you are . . ."

ANSWER: But, my dear friend, Jeff is NOT a chicken. A chicken is a bird. At night, instead of going to bed, it roosts in a chicken house. It can't ride bicycles. If it is a male chicken, it seizes upon any occasion to flap its wings, push out its chest and squawk "Cock-a-doodle-do!"

Thus, it is absurd for you to take Jeff's biologically confused persecutor seriously. So my suggestion is that you turn his persecution into the nonsense it is. We do this by asking Jeff to play the part of his persecutor while you pretend to be Jeff. When, in the role of this older boy, he tells you you're a chicken, you flap your arms in lieu of wings, stick out your chest and squawk "Cock-a-doodle-do!" Then, resuming your own identity say to Jeff, "O.K. That's what you must do when this dope tells you that you are a chicken. Get off your bike, flap your arms and crow the loudest 'Cock-a-doodle-do' you can. Then yell, 'Oh, I AM a chicken! And I can squawk louder than you can!' "

Jeff may need to rehearse this silly game with you several times before this scary word "chicken" is deflated into silliness.

"Agree with thine adversary quickly" is one of the most brilliant recommendations handed down to us by Jesus.

Absolutely brilliant. Because all adversaries, all persecutors, regardless of age, expect us to resist them.

They've got to have our resistance in order to destroy it and subject us to more persecution. They're obsessed with desire for our resistance.

So, when instead we give them agreement that we are indeed the chicken they've told us we are, they fall apart. They are rendered utterly uncertain and purposeless. So uncertain, so shocked by our unexpected agreement that before they can know what's happened to them, they have joined in the nonsense game with us—and actually compete for that louder "Cock-a-doodle-do."

BUTLER STOR-N-FEED®
Systems for Forage and Grain

If all you get is "the blues" from shopping for a low moisture silage system, take a look at the big, white Butler Stor-N-Feed®

Here's up to 1128 tons of "oxygen-free" storage for corn silage, or 620 tons for low moisture silage—plus Butler's exclusive, maintenance-free breathing system. No breather bags to replace, no relief valves to let air in.

Efficient top unloader is easily serviced. Delivers more silage, faster, than bottom unloaders . . . and with only five horsepower. Bright, white finish reflects heat—minimizes gas expansion.

Price for the Butler Stor-N-Feed® system? You'll be amazed. Thousands of dollars less than some systems. There's an equally efficient and economical system for high moisture grain, too. And Butler offers low-cost deferred payment terms and lease plans.

Ask Them Yourself

FOR LT. GEN. K. E. PLETCHER,
Surgeon General, USAF

Why is it that other branches of the military give commissions to non-citizen-registered nurses while the Air Force refuses to accept them?—Mrs. Ida Welsh Vickers, Santa Monica, Calif.

● Under current Air Force standards, U. S. citizenship is a prerequisite for a woman to obtain a commission. Male medical noncitizens (doctors, dentists), however, are subject to military service under the provisions of the law. Because the law does not impose a military service obligation on females, the desirable citizenship requirement can be maintained.

FOR VIRGINIA GRAHAM
of "Girl Talk"

Are the guests on your program screened so they will have the same views and interests?—Mary E. Miller, Rochester, N. Y.

● Yes. They are screened but not in the way you suggest. We try to find women with differences of opinion; the kind of women who would not ordinarily meet.

FOR A. ROSS ECKLER,
Director, Bureau of the Census

How many persons are born each day in the U. S., and how many die? —Mrs. Emerson Kelley, Port Huron, Mich.

● The average number of daily births and deaths, based on estimated data for the period July 1, 1966, through June 30, 1967, is 10,000 births and 5,000 deaths.

FOR LEE REMICK

You just made a movie with Frank Sinatra. What did you think of him before the film, and what do you think of him now?—L. D., Green Bay, Wis.

● Before filming, I was told Frank "winged" his roles and didn't really care about acting, while I take acting seriously. What I discovered is that it's true he rarely does more than one take, but he's probably the best natural actor I've ever seen. He brings the same honesty, intelligence, and simplicity to his lines that he does to his songs.

FOR DAVID BRINKLEY

How and when did you team up with Chet Huntley?—Mrs. Albert Mauldin, Austin, Texas

● It was unintentional. We were the anchormen for coverage of the 1965 political conventions and for the Presidential election later that year. We were well accepted and have been a team since.

FOR PAUL HORNUNG

Why does Green Bay quarterback Bart Starr call you "goat"?—Rickey Cowley, Smithville, Miss.

● "Goat" is short for "goat shoulders." I picked up the nickname because I have sloping shoulders.

FOR ISAAC ASIMOV,
science-fiction author

Has science fiction contributed to scientific advance?—R. D., Kankakee, Ill.

● No—not contributed specifically in the sense that it suggested theories or devices which scientists went on to develop. Science fiction is primarily intended to entertain, but it sometimes inspires. Many youngsters owe their interest in science to their initial interest in science fiction. That is perhaps its true contribution.

FOR DICK CLARK
of "American Bandstand"

How are the kids who dance on your show selected?—Debbie Easton, Reno, Nev.

● Youngsters interested in dancing on "American Bandstand" should call Miss Marcia Silverman, area code 213-278-1641, between 1 and 5 p.m. Pacific time. They will be given the necessary information.

FOR HARRY GOLDEN

How do you rate today's young people?—T. M., Atlantic City, N. J.

● Much better than the American youth of the past. Today's youth has awareness, involvment, and commitment. They are protesting the sorry world we left them, hoping to leave a better world for their own children.

WHAT IN THE WORLD!

LBJ—before

Graying Grandpa After President Johnson's recent State of the Union message, the burning question in many circles was, "Did he or didn't he?"—dye his hair, that is. No, insiders whisper. It's just that L.B.J. had been using a pomade which darkened his hair, but he has discontinued using it. He also has switched to spectacles with grayer frames—perhaps in keeping with his role as a new grandfather.

LBJ—after

Boning Up Fluoride has been used in thousands of communities to prevent tooth decay. Now doctors have demonstrated that it also has the ability to harden bone and promote the healing of fractures. It's a boon to patients with osteoporosis, a disease that contributes to the many fractures in older people.

The Class-less Society One of the "newest" proposals for elementary schools is called "multi-age grouping." The idea is that it's more natural and lifelike to have children of different ages in the same classroom. Each child can then proceed at his own pace according to his own interests. Older children can tutor the younger ones, and thus increase their own understanding of a subject. Younger ones can have models to look up to. If it all sounds vaguely familiar, it should. As educators admit, it's a way of going forward by going backward—to the good old days of the one-room schoolhouse grandpa knew.

Detective Story Intellectuals were always a bit disturbed because Presidents Franklin Roosevelt and John Kennedy liked mystery novels. Now a new educational technique suggests that the thrillers may actually have helped them in solving their White House problems. Called "Productive Thinking," the program for 10-to 12-year-olds is based on an illustrated story involving a father and two children who solve mysteries. The students are given clues and encouraged to beat the characters to the solution. Tests show that youngsters who've taken the course score at least twice as high in problem-solving as other pupils.

Change of Heart The newest novel by Francoise Sagan will take place in Los Angeles. As the French authoress explains, she was there—for one day. The author of "Bonjour Tristesse" now lives on a tree-lined, middle-class street in Paris. Surrounded by comforts, she asks, "Isn't it nicer to be bourgeois?"

Another "Bonnie and Clyde"? The clothes Theodora Van Runkle designed for the movie, "Bonnie and Clyde," created a fashion revolution. "People were ready for it," she says of the gangster-moll look. "We're becoming more romantic and so we turn to the past. The present is too difficult." Theodora now has designed some wild hippie clothes for "I Love You, Alice B. Toklas." She's hoping that flower power will prove as explosive as gun power.

Can We Be Modern and CHRISTIAN, TOO?

To some people nowadays, the Christian way of life is naive, old-fashioned, "square."

As if the teachings of Jesus Christ had ceased to be pertinent to this sophisticated age.

A radio commentator, in fact, said recently that in another 50 years mankind will seek answers to man's questions of being from science rather than religion.

This may seem to make sense to an era plagued by war, dishonesty, social injustice, "hippies," LSD, divorce, pornography and an exaggerated preoccupation with matters of sex.

But — does it?

Christ did not sacrifice His life for the salvation of one generation and not another. Nor did He promulgate a way of life that would be relevant to the needs of one period of time and not to others. His "blueprint" for Christian living is founded on divine and enduring principles, not upon the changing mores and deviations of a particular time in history.

Living the Christian life in the modern world may be different than it was in earlier and less turbulent times. But the vital need of doing so has not diminished if we are to find meaning and purpose in this life and eternal salvation in the next.

If you feel truly concerned about these things, we invite you to send for our new pocket-size pamphlet entitled "Christian Life and The Modern World." It covers in easy-to-read style such topics as "What Is a Christian?" . . . "The Modern World" . . . "The Christian's Involvement in The World" . . . "Christ and The Christian" . . . "The Christian — Old-Fashioned or Up to Date?" . . . "The Ecumenical Christian" . . . "The Christian and The Bible" and "The Christian Goes to Church."

Does America Need an Ombudsman?

Trapped in bureaucratic red tape? This man could help cut the knots and solve your problems

By Sen. PHILIP A. HART (Mich.)
with Charles Remsberg

A NEW ZEALAND businessman recently applied to his government for an importer's license.

Weeks passed with no reply. To his increasing dismay, letters and telegrams asking about the application brought no response. When he telephoned long-distance, he was connected only with low-echelon clerks who knew nothing at all about his case.

In the U.S., he might have had little choice but to pay a new application fee, file new papers, and hope that somehow things would work smoothly the second time. But New Zealand, like a growing number of other progressive nations, offers its citizens an easier and more effective way to cope with such exasperating situations.

In these countries, a special public servant called an "ombudsman" (amh-BOOTS-mahn) holds office for the specific purpose of helping persons whose dealings with government agencies somehow go awry. Unlike individual citizens, the ombudsman can order a thorough and immediate investigation of any case, can subpoena pertinent records for review, and can demand answers to his questions.

In keeping with the meaning of his title (ombudsman is a Scandinavian word for "representative" or "agent"), he serves as an intermediary between citizens and their government in moments of conflict, assuring proper adjustment when abuses or malfunctions occur.

When the New Zealander filed a formal complaint about the run-around he had been getting for three months, the ombudsman telephoned the director of the department involved. Within hours, the "vanished" application was found lying in a file on an officer's desk. Somewhere along the line it had been pigeonholed mistakenly for "more study." Now it was acted upon at once, and the ombudsman was assured that such an arbitrary delay would not occur again.

In this age of increasingly complex government, the swift and inexpensive method that New Zealand, Sweden, Denmark, Norway, and other free nations have adopted to safeguard individuals from unfair bureaucratic treatment is too impressive to ignore.

Americans, too, can benefit from such a system. For that reason, I have introduced legislation in the U.S. Senate in cooperation with Sen. Edward Long of Missouri and Sen. Robert Kennedy of New York calling for the first Congressional endorsement of an ombudsman office for the United States.

As presently drafted, my proposal is only a beginning, but the need was never more timely. Our lives are being influenced more and more by public departments and bureaus as more government agencies with more duties arise every year.

Like the hapless New Zealand businessman, many of us have experienced irritating—and sometimes costly—breakdowns in the performance of government agencies. As government becomes more complicated and specialized, the chance for mistakes naturally multiplies.

In a typical case I know of, a mother of four children applied for Social Security benefits when her husband died in November, 1966. She was entitled to immediate aid from funds her spouse had rightfully earned, yet nothing happened.

Desperate, she began calling her local Social Security office every month, pleading for her check so that she could feed and clothe her children for school. Each time she was told by a brusque clerk that the office was "behind in work" and that she could expect a check the next month.

More than six months passed before she finally got the help she had deserved—and then only because a newspaper took up her crusade.

There are thousands of other cases being mishandled by government agencies, involving everything from negligent local trash collections to unfair Selective Service assignments. Those victims not fortunate enough to rally the news media or some other influential champion often have little choice but to endure the problem.

In many cases, their problems might be promptly corrected if the right persons within the offending agencies could be contacted. In others, legal action might be helpful. But taking a case to court is both expensive and slow. A teacher in Pasadena, Calif., for example, recently obtained a court ruling that public-school officials had acted illegally in arbitrarily removing him from his classroom just because he chose to wear a beard. But it took him four years and a lot of money to do it.

Under the ombudsman system, by contrast, your battle would be fought for you. Once the ombudsman decides to investigate your complaint, he and his staff would handle all the legal and paper work involved.

Details of how such a system might function in this country are not defined at present, and to rush into a national plan might create more problems than would be solved. Thus the legislation I am cosponsoring calls initially for the establishment of an ombudsman to serve the District of Columbia alone. If this pilot project were to prove effective, I would then advocate expansion.

Ultimately I would like to see an ombudsman in this country at the national level, perhaps with staffs in regional offices, to handle complaints against Federal agencies. So that citizens can be fully protected, I believe that ombudsmen also should be established at state and local levels to investigate bureaus and departments within these jurisdictions.

Under the proposed legislation, the ombudsman would be appointed without regard to political affiliation by the President, with Senate approval, for a three-year term. Salaried at $33,000 a year, he would be an attorney of great professional competence and personal integrity, with no recent connection with any government agency. He could serve a maximum of four terms and could hire the necessary staff.

Much of his time would be spent investigating complaints from Washington citizens who feel Federal bureaus or departments have acted illegally, unreasonably, mistakenly, or inefficiently in dealing with them. Nominal fees could be charged for this service, but all costs would be waived if they meant any financial hardship. To facilitate his investigation, he would have the power to subpoena witnesses and compel officials to produce records.

After any investigation, the ombudsman would make specific recommendations to the agency involved. Although he would turn over to proper authorities any official or employee he considered guilty of misconduct, he would not have the power to demand that his recommendations to agencies be followed.

But since the ombudsman's activities are a matter of public record, the threat of unfavorable publicity is usually enough to bring any reluctant public official into line.

Not long ago, a Gallup poll revealed that among Americans with an opinion on the subject, a sizable majority believe that an ombudsman would benefit the U.S.

When an ombudsman is available, citizens can deposit their governmental problems on a single desk and let a specialist untangle the bureaucratic knots. This not only saves their time and spares their nerves but enhances their chances of a satisfactory outcome.

Finally an ombudsman system could be an immeasurable boon to Congress. My colleagues and I often lament that more than half the work loads of our staffs—as well as our own energies—are now devoted to helping constituents with problems that could more effectively be resolved by an ombudsman. This is valuable time that could be better spent researching and defining our pressing national needs and creating and promoting imaginative legislation for meeting them.

I believe it is time to move positively on this proposition at all levels. Considering the number of people and purposes they serve, our Government agencies do amazingly well in performing their jobs. But through the ombudsman system, we have a chance to do even better.

And in keeping a democracy running smoothly, that's an opportunity we cannot afford to miss. ◆

Senator Hart feels an ombudsman would solve many of his constituents' problems.

LOWDOWN ON LOANS:

How to Shop for Money

Borrowing money at cheap interest rates can be tricky: here are some tips to make a loan fit your budget

By Mrs. HATTIE STEWART, Counseling Supervisor, Family Financial Counseling Service

■ More than 3,500 families in the Chicago area have been helped out of debt by Family Financial Counseling Service since it began two years ago. A unique community effort supported by lenders, retailers, employers, and civic leaders, the service gives free counseling in money management.

AS A COUNSELOR to hundreds of people who have found themselves deep in debt, I've noticed they all have one thing in common.

Not only do they not know how to handle money, they don't know how to shop for it. One of our clients was paying 75 percent interest on a loan from an illegal lender! A bank loan for the same amount might have cost 10 percent. My advice is that if you're about to buy something on credit, ask yourself:

1. What is the true interest rate on this purchase? 2. How much in dollars will I be paying in interest? 3. Can I get the same amount of cash for less interest?

I believe that the first step in getting out of debt is rehabilitating yourself through education. Here are questions asked me most often—and the answers which you can use for more intelligent borrowing.

Q. We've recently refurnished our bedroom, bought a car, and had some expensive dental work done. For the first time, I'm getting behind in my payments, and my creditors are making threatening noises. What can I do about it?

A. If this is the first time you've gotten into trouble with credit, you probably have a good credit rating. You might consider making a consolidation loan from your bank or credit union, if you belong to one. This could save you money in the long run, besides keeping your creditors from taking legal action.

For example, if you are paying off the furniture on a revolving charge account at a department store, you are probably paying about 18 percent interest a year. (That's what becomes of a 1½ percent monthly service charge.) If you financed the car through a dealer, you may be paying 14 percent interest. A bank consolidation loan at, say, 10 percent would bail you out and save you money, too.

Q. Our refrigerator and our tv set gave out at the same time. We need the refrigerator, of course, and we'd like another tv set, but we don't have the cash for either. What is the best way to finance them?

A. You have three choices—through a dealer, a small-loan company, or a bank. (If you belong to a credit union, that makes four.) Be sure to compare their rates before you sign for the loan. Rates on an installment contract with a dealer may vary between 18 and 24 percent. Rates for small-loan companies are set by state law, from 18 to 42 percent. (These loans are useful for those who cannot get a bank loan.) Personal loans from banks cost 10 to 16 percent and those from credit unions 8 to 12 percent.

Q. I need our car on my job, and now my wife needs a car because we've just moved to the suburbs. We've found what I think is a good secondhand bargain, but the bank won't give us a loan. What should we do?

A. You might try financing the car either through the dealer or an auto finance company. Car loans are typically cheaper than other kinds of loans because the lender has the car as collateral. In the case of secondhand cars, however, interest rates are higher because the car has less market value. See what terms the dealer will give you, and then compare the rates with an auto finance company.

Before you sign a contract, make sure it contains: a) The down payment (as large as possible to cut down carrying charges); b) the kind, amount, and cost of insurance, if included; c) all other fees; d) the total amount to be financed; e) the interest charge in dollars; f) the exact number and amount of payments, including the last one. Many unscrupulous dealers may quote low monthly payments, and then surprise the buyer with a huge "balloon" last payment.

In the case of those lenders who state their charge as so many dollars

| LENDER | TYPE OF CREDIT | ANNUAL INTEREST RATE |
|---|---|---|
| Auto finance companies | Car loans | 10-34% |
| Commercial banks | Personal loans | 10-16 |
| | Car loans | 8-12 |
| | Education loans | 3-13 |
| | Home-improvement loans | 6-18 |
| Credit Unions | Loans to members subject to approval by credit committee. Various purposes | 8-12 |
| Retailers | Revolving | 18-24 |
| | Installment contract | 18 and up |
| Savings and loan companies and savings banks | Home-improvement loans | 6-18 |
| Small-loan companies | Small loans | 18-42 |

per hundred, discounted in advance, you can estimate the true annual interest rate by doubling the listed charge. This is so because you pay the stated interest on the whole amount while the principal, due to monthly payments, declines. A stated interest rate of $5 per $100 is equal to about 10 percent in true annual interest.

Q. We want to take a vacation. But our other expenses are heavy, and we're trying to decide whether to borrow the money and go now or try to save the money first. What should we consider?

A. You have to weigh time against money. First, find out how much the loan would cost in dollars. Then you can make your decision on a realistic basis. To find out the dollar cost of a loan, first add up all the payments —including the down payment, installments, and any service charges —and then subtract the price of the item if you had paid cash. The difference is the dollar cost of the credit. Sometimes the cost of money will make a couple decide to save ahead (and earn interest on the savings) rather than to borrow.

Q. Our son was recently taken ill and we have several hundred dollars' worth of medical bills that aren't covered by insurance. I'm wondering whether we should borrow to pay them or whether to dip into our very tiny savings?

A. Many people are understandably reluctant to withdraw from their savings because they are so hard to replace. If you're already heavily in debt, however, you may have trouble getting a loan for the doctor bills and will have to take the money from your savings. (One way to repay yourself: have a specific amount transferred from your checking account to your savings account each month.) A rule of thumb that some bankers use when they're deciding whether to make a loan: your total installment debt, excluding mortgage payments, should not exceed one third of your discretionary income—that is, the money left over when food, clothing, and shelter have been paid for.

When you're shopping for money it's useful to know what kinds of loans may be made where. Certain loan institutions can grant loans only for specific purposes. Others have their interest rates fixed by law.

On page 6 is a table based on nationwide rates for loans. Naturally the rates vary according to the individual lender, community, and type of loan. Except for the car loans, all these loans can be gotten without collateral. Loans for which you can put up some kind of security, of course, come cheaper. ◈

Vietnam claims a son. Cancer dooms a young mother. Children die in a school bus tragedy. Why? Where is God when these things happen?

In the depths of blind anguish, some people lash out that maybe God is a tyrant. Maybe He wants people to suffer. Or maybe human wretchedness is beyond His control!

For many, saying "It is God's will" is enough. For many others it is not. Who's being punished for what? Plagued by failure, illnesses, deaths, people often lose faith. Even if you're not personally involved, you wonder, "Why?"

Is there an answer? How can Christians, facing despair, reconcile their misery and God? How can they go on worshiping Him as a loving God? Yet they do. In fact, they find in Christianity an unfailing source of strength.

This free booklet can help you understand this Christian perspective . . . help you face suffering with the renewed faith and courage it can give.

Luncheon to Please the Feminine Fancy

■ With the winter season waning and spirits lagging, it's time for that bright and gay luncheon party to entertain six close friends. Here is a menu we hope will please all.

•••••••••••

Artichokes Veronique

6 large artichokes, cooked (see directions)
Sauce Veronique (see recipe)
2 cups diced canned crab meat
¼ cup shredded Cheddar cheese
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
Melted butter or margarine

1. While artichokes are cooking, prepare sauce.

2. Mix the canned crab meat into hot sauce, fill artichokes, and place in a shallow baking dish. Sprinkle tops with a mixture of the cheeses. Brush outsides of artichokes with the melted butter or margarine.

3. Place in a 400°F. oven until cheese is melted, about 5 minutes.

6 servings

Note: On each luncheon plate, place a stuffed artichoke along with two corn fritters, a spiced peach, and a sprig of watercress.

Salad Tip: Toss crisp salad greens with notched cucumber slices and short strips of green pepper; drizzle lightly with Italian-style salad dressing.

Sauce Veronique

½ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup finely chopped onion
⅓ cup regular all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons salt
1 teaspoon Accent
⅛ teaspoon pepper
⅛ teaspoon dry mustard
⅛ teaspoon ground nutmeg
2½ cups milk
1 cup heavy cream
1 egg, fork beaten
½ cup green grapes, cut in pieces

Cook onion in hot butter or margarine in the top of a large double boiler. Stir in a mixture of the flour and next five ingredients. Heat until bubbly. Add milk and cream gradually, stirring until smooth. Bring rapidly to boiling; cook and stir for 2 minutes. Place double-boiler top over boiling water and immediately stir some of the hot mixture into the egg. Immediately blend into mixture in the double boiler. Cook over boiling water 5 min., stirring constantly. Mix in the grapes.

How to Cook Artichokes

Cut off about 1 in. from tops and bases of artichokes. Remove and discard lower outside leaves. Snip off tips of remaining leaves. Stand close together in a deep saucepan. Cook until tender 30 to 45 min. in boiling salted water to cover adding to water 2 cloves garlic, several lemon slices, and 2 tablespoons olive oil. Drain and cut off stems at base; remove "choke."

Corn-Gold Fritters

1⅓ cups sifted regular all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
2 eggs, well beaten
⅔ cup milk
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon margarine, melted
1 can (12 oz.) golden whole kernel corn, drained
Fat for deep frying heated to 365°F.

1. Blend the first four ingredients in a bowl.

2. Mix the milk, Worcestershire sauce, and melted margarine with the eggs. Add all at one time to the dry ingredients and beat with a rotary beater just until smooth. Mix in the corn.

3. For each frying, drop batter by tablespoonfuls into the hot fat until surface is covered. Fry 2 to 3 min., or until golden brown, turning frequently. Drain fritters over fat for a few seconds before removing to absorbent paper. Allow 2 fritters per serving.

About 6 servings

Pan o' Rolls

Elegant rolls to serve at this luncheon can come quickly when using refrigerated biscuits or rolls. Here is a fine recipe featuring refrigerated ready-to-bake biscuits.

¼ cup butter or margarine
1 clove garlic, minced
2 tablespoons snipped parsley
2 pkgs. (8 oz. each) refrigerated biscuits
½ cup shredded Parmesan cheese

1. Heat butter or margarine and garlic in a small skillet; stir in the parsley. Remove from heat.

2. Separate biscuits; dip each in the garlic butter to coat. Overlap 15 biscuits around the outer edge of a 9-in. round layer-cake pan; form an inner circle by overlapping remaining biscuits.

3. Drizzle any remaining butter over top of biscuits and sprinkle evenly with the cheese.

4. Bake at 425°F. 15 to 20 minutes.

Grecian Glazed Oranges

Using a shredder remove the peel from oranges (allow one per serving). Pour freshly boiling water over peel to cover, let stand 10 min., and drain. Repeat twice, being sure that the water is boiling each time it is poured over peel. Meanwhile, cut off and discard all the white underskin from oranges. Prepare a sugar syrup allowing for each orange ⅓ cup water and ⅓ cup sugar; boil for 10 minutes. Tint with a few drops yellow or orange food coloring. Pour boiling syrup over oranges; let stand about 15 minutes. Return syrup to saucepan and boil it 15 minutes. Stir in the peel and pour over oranges; cool. Stack oranges pyramid fashion in a serving dish and pour syrup over them to glaze.

As the Girl Scouts celebrate their 56th birthday, an original member recalls:

We Were the Talk of Our Town

By FLORENCE SCHWALB

WHENEVER I hear people today say, "Nice girls don't do those things!" I have to smile.

I think back to 56 years ago when my cousin Daisy—Juliette Gordon Low, as the world came to know her—became the talk of Savannah, Ga., by founding the first Girl Scout troop in America, a group celebrating its birthday this week.

Thanks to Cousin Daisy, I was able to be in that first troop. She waited until my birthday on March 12, 1912, so I'd meet the minimum age of 11. That day 18 girls promised, as Girl Scouts still do today, "On my honor, I will try to do my duty to God and my country . . ."

Then Cousin Daisy, who was 52 and had learned about scouting when she lived in England, told us briskly, "We need broadening! We've got to do something besides knit and tat!" So she taught us to tie knots that very afternoon.

For that first year, though, we girls don't think Cousin Daisy had gotten us very far out of our rut. There were rumblings of discontent, and some of the girls wanted to walk out because, to be honest, we found it dull.

Then Cousin Daisy's ideas began to take shape. There was an end to those dreary meetings when we'd wonder, "Well, what do we do now?" She started us playing basketball, taking hikes, learning first aid and child care, and eventually working toward earning Girl Scout badges.

In the opinion of many in Savannah, these activities were most unsuitable for well-bred young ladies—especially basketball. That we played this "unfeminine" sport in middies and bloomers was quite shocking. To shield their outraged eyes from the sight of female legs, I helped cousin Daisy hang gunny sacks along the fence around our outdoor playing court.

Cousin Daisy's ideas were advanced for her day, but she was very proper about manners and grooming. In later years, when she visited Girl Scout camps, it was a common warning to the girls to "pull up your hose and pull down your bloomers. Your founder is coming!"

I was painfully shy in those early days, and Cousin Daisy, knowing this, would always call attention to me so that I had to speak up. She put me in the front lines when we handed out coffee to the World War I troop trains, though I blushed doing it.

Her strategy worked, however. In a few years, as Thanksgiving approached, I had no qualms about soliciting for the needy.

My daughter and granddaughters followed me into Girl Scouting, though, of course, many things have changed over the years. In my day, it was scandalous for girls to want to do anything more than embroider and take music lessons. Today a Girl Scout's uniform barely reaches her knees, she dances the frug, and can go camping with Boy Scouts, or travel abroad.

Girl Scout inspection—in 1912.

Yet some things never change. When I joined that first troop of Cousin Daisy's, we prided ourselves on being ahead of our time. In that, I think my granddaughters are a lot like us. ◆

If you're in debt and want to get out—I can show you 71 ingenious (but perfectly legal) ways to do it

I wrote this book for people who are in debt, for those who really need help. And they can get it, quicker and easier than they think.

There are dozens of legitimate ways (a full 71 in all) to delay your debt, and eventually get out of it, and I believe I know them all. It's a pity that more people don't.

I have been a bank credit officer for nearly thirty years. In this time, I have sat down with a quarter of a million people to help them solve their financial problems.

My new book, HOW TO HAVE MORE MONEY TO SPEND, demonstrates step by step the techniques that can take the strain out out of paying your debts. With some thought and planning, you can change a recurring monthly headache into a relatively painless experience!

TIME-TESTED METHODS

Did you know, for example, that you can borrow yourself out of debt? (The process involves a number of thoroughly tested steps —the first of which is to borrow about twice as much as you need.)

And here are a few other things I'd like to show you:

- How to "freeze" your indebtedness indefinitely, paying it off only when you're ready — a perfectly proper technique that works fine for the U.S. Government, and can work just as well for you.
- How to get more credit — even when it seems you have reached your limit.
- How to avoid paying hidden charges when you buy on "time." (In other words, how to reduce your debts even before you incur them.)
- How to eliminate many needless, crippling expenses from your personal spending.
- How to deal with your financial problem as a whole — instead of wasting money attacking it piecemeal.

Which method—or combination of methods — should you use? As you read How To Have More Money To Spend, this question will answer itself. The book is filled with detailed case histories. At least one of them should be close enough to your own situation for all practical purposes.

Remember: none of this is theoretical or speculative. It has all been tried — it has all worked. Every course of action I recommend has helped real people find their way back to one of the happiest conditions known to man — complete solvency.

Now...Denture Invention

Replaces messy powders, oozing pastes, reliners

The big difference between natural teeth and dentures is in performance. Natural teeth are held solidly in place by living connective tissue. Without connective tissue, even the most expensive dentures may slip and rock. Gums often get raw and sore. Constant rubbing may cause serious bone damage. Eating can be slow, painful. You speak less clearly. You dare not laugh for fear of dentures dropping.

Now chemists have developed an artificial connective membrane—FIXODENT. It connects dentures with gums and mouth surfaces. It is incredibly effective for both uppers and lowers.

FIXODENT's elastic membrane absorbs the shock of biting and chewing—helps protect gums from bruising and irritation. You eat faster—bite harder, without pain—enjoy your food more. Eat hard-to-chew foods—steaks, fruits,—prevent "denture malnutrition," a problem of older people.

FIXODENT helps you speak easier, faster, more clearly. When dentures slip you hold them in place with tongue and cheek muscles that ache. FIXODENT helps prevent strain.

The special pencil-point dispenser spots FIXODENT with precision—no oozing over. Often lasts 'round-the-clock. It even resists hot drinks. Dentures that fit are essential to health. See your dentist regularly. Get special FIXODENT at all drug counters.

GROW ALL YOU CAN EAT FOR PENNIES PER BASKET

For the average family we recommend 20 vines planted on 9 ft. square plot. Pick a sunny spot, spend a few moments to plant. Little special care of cultivation is needed. Strawberry plants multiply rapidly reaching full maturity in 2 years. Each Mother plant bears many Daughter plants. If allowed to take root, these will become Mother plants producing additional Daughter plants. By following the simple illustrated instructions in our free booklet, you can soon enlarge your harvest to take care of all your needs for short cake, breakfast, freezing, and a year round supply of jam. This plot of beautiful, ornamental and prolific everbearers will grow baskets and baskets, literally hundreds of large, luscious berries over a full 5 month period. Readily trained they will grow up-up-up walls, fences, trellis or poles. Within a matter of days you see them come to life. In a short time you'll be picking clusters of ripe, mouth-watering sun sweetened berries, some as large as plums, clean, right off the vine, with no dirt. Because strawberry plants are easy to grow and propagate, you, like many thousands of other amateur gardeners, should have little difficulty in raising a satisfactory crop of vine-ripe berries. We are specially proud of the thousands of orders received thru recommendations to friends and neighbors.

Now you can order directly from us and receive 20 plants for only $2.00. Don't delay as orders will be accepted and shipped on a first-come, first-shipped basis. Order now! # Furniture Finds

By ROSALYN ABREVAYA

EVERY HOME needs a unique piece of furniture—one that delights the eye, serves more than one purpose, or fills a small space skillfully.

As you shop for furniture, keep your eyes peeled for a piece that really pleases you. Its lines should fulfill your sense of beauty now and be classic enough to endure in a future setting. If it's a bit out of the reach of your budget, but you know the piece will make your room, give up something else to own it.

The type of furniture piece you buy is up to you. It might be a highly unusual wall unit, cabinet, chair, or coffee table—almost any piece that has been designed well and satisfies the function for which it was intended.

Have we spurred the collector's bug? Here we offer some suggestions to inspire you in your search. ◆

This elegant apothecary chest from Drexel would do handsomely in a hall or small hard-to-fill corner and give storage space.

How to get rich

How can you get rich some day? Make a hit record . . . a killing on the stock market . . . or invent a gadget like the hula hoop?

For most of us, these are just dreams. But have you ever stopped to think that there is a way to get rich—possibly only one sure way? Most fortunes, as you know, are made by people who own their own business.

Perhaps you've thought of starting a small business of your own . . . a franchised drive-in, or maybe a service business. Trouble is, you need $10,000 to $15,000 to get started and even then it's a gamble—with slim chance of ever making really big money.

But there is one business which could make you rich—almost overnight! And the beauty of it is, you can start on a shoestring during your spare time, even while holding your regular job.

Cash by Mail

The business is Mail Order—and it's fabulous! Come up with a 'hot' new item . . . and WHAM!

It strikes like a bolt of lightning!

Suddenly, you are deluged with cash orders from all over the country . . . MORE MONEY than you could ever make in a lifetime!

Like the Vermont dealer who ran one ad in Sports Afield Magazine. His ad pulled 22,000 orders—over A HALF MILLION DOLLARS IN CASH!

There is no other business where you can make a fortune so quickly!

- A beginner from Newark, N.J. ran his first small ad in House Beautiful—offering an auto clothes rack. Business Week reported that his ad brought in $5,000 in orders. By the end of his first year in Mail Order, he had grossed over $100,000!
- Another beginner—a lawyer from the midwest, sold an idea by mail to fisherman. Specialty Salesman Magazine reveals, "he made $70,000 the first three months!"

Proof

It's a fascinating business! Running ads in newspapers and magazines . . . mailing gift catalogs . . . getting cash orders in your daily mail—steady as clockwork.

There is no other business where you can start on a shoestring and pyramid your profits—without investing in merchandise! One husband and wife mail order team took in $40,000 selling one item. They obtained FREE ads in national magazines . . . didn't invest a cent in merchandise, and even got the supplier to ship all orders for them!

These exceptional cases are absolute proof that you can get rich in your own Mail Order business. Very rich. Even a U.S. Gov. Report stated: "A number of one-man Mail Order enterprises make up to $50,000!"

Pick up any magazine. Notice how the same mail order ads are repeated . . . month after month? That's concrete proof! You know those ads wouldn't be repeated over and over again—unless they were bringing in big cash profits to their owners.

The Secret

The secret of getting rich in Mail Order lies in financial leverage. It's a little-known, almost secret method—using other people's capital to make money for you!

You can get thousands of dollars worth of advertising in big national magazines—without investing your own money! And you don't have to write a single ad. Tested and proven ads are prepared for you by experts. Reinvest the profits from your first successful ad—to get more, larger ads, and the profits begin to snowball! It's like building a chain of stores . . . each new store puts more money in your pocket.

You mail out beautiful catalogs which offer hundreds of dollars worth of fine, quality gifts—yet you don't invest one cent of your own money in merchandise! Your catalogs are printed with your name and address, so all orders come to you. Everything is "drop-shipped" for you, and there's up to 100% mark-up! You pocket the cash profits immediately—even before the orders are shipped to your customers!

Repeat orders alone, just from mailing catalogs, could bring you a steady income for the rest of your life!

Yes, Mail Order is the fastest-growing, most profitable business in America! And now, with more people moving to the suburbs . . . the population explosion . . . and the expanding teenage market . . . we are on the verge of the BIGGEST BOOM in Mail Order history!

Now, with the help and backing of Mail Order Associates, Inc., of Montvale, N.J., you can follow the same proven steps to Mail Order success—using the 'secret' of financial leverage!

Start Now

We supply you with beautiful gift catalogs throughout the year. All products are dropshipped for you, with up to 100% mark-up! You get free samples of top-selling mail order items, plus monthly trade reports on 'hot' new products . . . tested, successful ads are sent to you monthly. You get advertising directories, postal laws, complete courses, expert guidance—EVERYTHING you need to practically guarantee YOUR SUCCESS. Why? Because our business depends upon your success. It's mutually profitable!

A recent feature article in Income Opportunities Magazine stated, "Mail Order Associates Inc., offers the most comprehensive Mail Order program ever offered to beginners." They go on to say, "This could be the opportunity you've been looking for. A chance to get in on the ground floor in a little-known business which we believe is on the verge of a new boom."

FRANCOISE HARDY:

She'd Rather Swing Than Be a Star

By PEER J. OPPENHEIMER

TWO YEARS ago, an MGM official asked French actress Francoise Hardy if she wanted to become an international star.

"How long will it take?" was her immediate reply. A couple of years, she was told. "Forget it," she said. "I'm having too much fun to bother with that."

And so she was. She had become one of France's most popular singers when barely 19 years old and had appeared in a number of films, including Francoise Sagan's "Castle in Sweden." But the real reason for her wide acceptance among French youth was her seemingly carefree and informal attitude (she almost always wears slacks and blouse).

Francoise once had the audacity to walk into the lobby of London's staid and conservative Savoy Hotel, dressed in bright orange slacks and yellow sweater. Ordinarily, she would have been asked to leave, except for one thing—she was performing there!

Francoise did impress someone with this type of attitude—young American director John Frankenheimer, in Europe to cast and shoot MGM's "Grand Prix." Frankenheimer signed up Francoise simply because he wanted a girl who looked "just like that."

After the film was completed, MGM officials were so impressed with the young French actress that they asked her to come to the U.S. to help promote the film. She turned them down flat. "Working in films is one thing," she said. "Doing publicity is quite something else. It's too restrictive. No fun." That seems to be what life is all about to her.

With her smash success in "Grand Prix" came the chance many aspiring starlets yearn for: publicity tours, cocktail parties, candid interviews, the vital ingredients of fame and box-office draw. But Francoise is not like other girls. "Being a star would tie me down too much," she says. "I hate schedules."

As uninhibited as Francoise appears, she is basically a shy person. She is bewildered by the thousands of letters she receives from young girls like herself. "Most of them ask advice," she confesses. "Who am I to give advice? If it weren't for the way I dress, no one would notice me." Unless she performs, of course.

A friend tells of a party Francoise attended, dressed in a man's T-shirt, belted at the waist. "There wasn't much left to the imagination. She started the mini-fad long before Julie Christie even heard of it."

As much of a swinger as Francoise is, she will be in for a battle royal to protect that image now. She has come under the protective wing of famed French movie director Roger Vadim.

Vadim, of course, has a number of accomplishments to his credit. He made international stars out of Brigitte Bardot and Jane Fonda. But there is an exciting difference. They wanted to become stars, while 24-year-old Francoise couldn't care less.

Roger Vadim is determined to make Francoise Hardy another Bardot, and Vadim is known to finish what he sets out to do. But he may have met his match in this sexy, unassuming girl who'd rather swing than be a star. ◆

POLLY'S POINTERS

DEAR POLLY—After washing floors with soap and water add a tablespoon of vinegar to the clean rinse water to bring a little shine to your floor.—VALERIE

DEAR POLLY---When a group of small children want to paint and there is a shortage of regular brushes try using cotton swabs.---SWAMBI

DEAR POLLY—To eliminate that troublesome static while stuffing dolls with shredded foam rubber I rub a small amount of fabric softener on my hands. —MRS. A. B.

DEAR POLLY---Save the white tissue paper that comes as a liner or filler in a box and use it when cleaning windows and glassware. It does an excellent job.---ANNE

DEAR POLLY—Plastic net bags that come filled with onions, etc., can be made into effective and non-scratching scouring pads. Cut off both ends and fold it across three times. Tie in the center with matching string.—MRS. R. S. B.

Polly pays a dollar for every idea used. Send them to her, care of this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY---The glides on my kitchen chairs scratched the waxed floor so I cut pieces of felt to use the size of the glides, pasted a felt piece on the bottom of each chair glider with all-purpose glue and my wax job goes unscratched.---DONNA

DEAR POLLY—If you want to take hand lotion with you when going on a trip and yours is in a dispenser bottle, simply pump the lotion into a clean unbreakable shampoo tube. This packs beautifully and you return from a trip or camping with your hands in good shape.—MRS. E. B. McQ.

DEAR POLLY---When ironing pillowcases I iron a matching pair at one time, fold each in half, put them together, then fold them in half again (together) and put them away. I do not have to rummage through a pile of pillowcases to find mates because they are already folded together.---MRS. B. G.

DEAR POLLY—When changing my ironing board cover I realized that the ends were perfectly good. The cover was the same silvery material used on the backs of pot holders so I decided to make some oven mitts from these good ends. The palms were cut larger than the regular ones to allow for turning under and I used sterile cotton for the quilting. This saves buying a new holder every time you burn one or wear out the palm in a mitt.—ROSE ANNA
